Explorers Wouldn't Recognize River ... Modern Lewis And Clark Team Notices Changes

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Meriwether Lewis and William Clark would be hard-pressed today to recognize much of their original exploration route along the Missouri River, according to five young adventurers retracing the return leg of the 1804-06 journey.

The Great Falls of Montana, described in Lewis and Clark's journal as the most beautiful sight on the expedition, have been obliterated by waters backing up behind a dam.

And many miles of once tumbling whitecaps on the Missouri River are now impounded in comparatively placid pools behind the great system of dams constructed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Below Yankton, S.D., the latter-day explorers had to stop drinking river water when sewage began to appear.

Yet, all are finding the odyssey "really inspiring," according to Gary Kimsey of Independence, Mo., the 23-year-old chronicler of the 3,700-mile "Lewis and Clark Expedition, 1973."

"At times we'd go without seeing people for two weeks," Kimsey said. "It gives you a feeling of rapport with nature and a chance to see America as it has rarely been seen."

The five, who met while attending Colorado State University, were in Lincoln Wednesday to make Gov. J. James Exon an honorary member of the expedition after portaging Tuesday in Omaha. They left Ft. Clatsop, Ore., in two canoes and a kayak on June 7, and hope to arrive in St. Louis, Mo., on Nov. 19.

Mike Wien, 22, of Chicago, Ill., was nursing a cold as he related how the trip has restored his shaken view of humanity.

"When we started this thing, I did not have a really healthy feeling about people. But people, I found out, are really nice. In fact, they're fantastic."

"All along the way people were really eager to help us out — except on one occasion."

That incident happened near Pierre, S.D., where they stopped to head for a meeting with Gov. Richard Kneip. As they struck out down a road alongside a cornfield, they flushed a cloud of geese out of what was apparently a commercial goose hunting area.

Mike Cochran, 29, of Grand Junction, Colo., said "the most irate man I've ever seen" came after them and "tried to run us down" in a pick-up truck. The man, he said, confiscated their canoes, forcing them to seek help from the Pierre city council.

Apparently, the man was not popular, Cochran said, because "we got a hero's welcome" when the people there learned of their plight.

So far, Kimsey said, they have averaged 10-12 hours of paddling each day but are still 10 days behind their original schedule.

Kimsey, who said he lost 45 lbs. during the trip's first two months, blamed the delay on having to walk 435 miles from Lewiston, Ida., to Dillon, Mont., and to paddle through 400 miles of still water behind dams.

"I've never worked quite so hard in my life," Wien said.

Kimsey added, "It was strenuous and often got to be tedious."

The trip required them to carry 750 lbs. of equipment and to mail 2,000 lbs. of dehydrated food to various camping sites along the way.

"We've been eating for an average of $1.12 a day per person," Kimsey said.

The total cost of the trip was $400 per person for food, some equipment and emergency cash. They estimated that $1,500 was saved through corporate donations of equipment, including canoes.

By contrast, Congress appropriated $2,500 to finance the original expedition of 25 people.

When asked what they missed most of civilization, they agreed it was sleeping in a bed.

The five plan to write about and photograph the journey for books and magazine articles.

White House — Nixon Unaware Until Recently

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the White House tapes never existed, President Nixon's lawyers said Wednesday.

The White House said that Nixon had been unaware of that situation until last weekend.

Missing are recordings of what former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told Nixon in their first reported conversation following the Watergate break-in and of what passed between Nixon and John W. Dean III in a meeting in which Dean says Nixon admitted discussing clemency as part of the Watergate coverup.

Dean was White House counsel at the time of the meeting.

The Mitchell conversation of June 20, 1972, took place on a telephone without a recording device attached, and the Dean meeting of April 15, 1973, wasn't recorded due to an extremely rare malfunction of the automatic recording gear in the presidential offices. Nixon's lawyers told U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

Deputy White House press secretary Gerald L. Warren said that in the months of controversy over the Watergate tapes Nixon never asked to listen personally to the two nonexistent tapes.

Warren said extensive conversations and discussions in Nixon's office on April 14 and 15 — prior to the Dean meeting — had been recorded. But, he said, "when this conversation took place the first recorder had run out, filled up, and the alternate recorder was not activated until the next day, the 16th."

Warren said, "we've never said — he's never said — he listened to all the tapes."

Warren said the tapes had been stored in the White House "under lock and key."

In court, White House lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt told Sirica of the missing tapes in a private session Tuesday, and Sirica broached the matter in open court Wednesday.

It was the first time the White House had said any of the controversial tape recordings don't exist.

The two missing recordings are among nine tapes which had been sought by federal prosecutors and which Nixon had agreed to turn over to Sirica in accordance with an order from the federal appeals court in Washington.

Sirica heard open-court testimony Wednesday from a Secret Service technician who said the White House records had been checked daily on weekdays, and that the April 15 malfunction was the only recorder failure he knew of.

The technician, Raymond C. Zumwalt, said he knew of no other instance in which the automatic machines had failed to record. He said he hadn't remembered the April 15 malfunction until Buzhardt reminded him of it.

Federal prosecutors said Zumwalt told them earlier Wednesday that he couldn't recall any malfunctions at all.

Archibald Cox, whom Nixon fired as special Watergate prosecutor after Cox spurned an out-of-court settlement on the tapes, said Wednesday that the White House never told him any of the tapes might not exist.

Cox had sought a total of nine recordings and associated documents.

"My recollection is Buzhardt assured me they were in a safe place and properly guarded," Cox said at hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Cox said he heard of possible technical problems in the April 15 tape only a day or so before he was fired.

Cox said that immediately after the April 15 meeting Nixon dictated a recording giving a summary of what took place. He said prosecutors also were seeking this dictated tape.

Neither the April 15 Dean tape nor the June 20 Mitchell tape are among those which former White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman said he listened to.

In other Watergate-related developments:

—Former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst said he threatened to resign rather than obey Nixon's order to him last April to drop an appeal of an ITT antitrust case. Nixon changed his mind in the face of the threat, and the suit was continued, Kleindienst said in a statement.

—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Cox suggested that the Justice Department was the possible source of a news leak about Nixon's intervention in the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. case. Cox said at the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing that he understood that his former staff had briefed department officials on the investigation involving the matter.

—Sens. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Birch Bayh, D-Ind., called for reopening a Senate Judiciary Committee inquiry into the settlement of the ITT antitrust cases to determine whether Kleindienst committed perjury during the hearings, which were principally on his confirmation as attorney general.

Sources Say Prosecutor Is Jaworski

Washington (AP) — The Nixon administration was reported Wednesday night to have selected Leon Jaworski, a Houston, Tex., trial lawyer who formerly headed the American Bar Association, as the new Watergate special prosecutor.

Reliable sources reported that the Nixon administration planned to announce the selection of Jaworski as Watergate prosecutor and Sen. William B. Saxbe as the new attorney general on Thursday.

Girl Is Treated After Eating 'Trick' Candy

A 12-year-old Lincoln girl was treated and released from St. Elizabeth Health Center Wednesday night when she became "violently ill" after eating some Halloween candy, according to police Cpt. Lowell Sellmeyer.

Sellmeyer said the candy had an undetermined drug in it and tests were being run on the rest of the candy.

He said the girl was with a group of children trick-or-treating in the area of 65th to 75th and Holdrege to Huntington.

Sellmeyer also said there was at least one report of needles being found in a candy bar in Southwest Lincoln.

He said a group of children had been out trick-or-treating and when they returned home and examined the candy, two needles were found in a candy bar.

Sellmeyer said there were a few groups of youths taking trick-or-treat candy from smaller children and some fire hydrants were opened.

District fire chief Wendell Malcolm said Schramm Hall at the University of Nebraska was evacuated when someone set off a smoke bomb on the sixth floor.

Malcolm said the smoke bomb was as large as the type used by the fire department in its drills. The sheriff's office reported the usual Halloween pranks taking place in the villages out in the country.

Bales of hay and outhouses were carried into the streets, tomatoes and eggs were thrown, tires were deflated and windows were soaped.

Fuel Saving Action Urged By Prospective Candidate

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Even if it requires a special session of the Legislature, Nebraska should take steps immediately to prepare for a shortage of energy fuels this winter, a prospective candidate for lieutenant governor said Wednesday.

Such action might include a reduction in highway speed limits and more flexibility to close schools in particularly cold weather, Lincoln businessman Bill Harris said.

Schools may be hampered in taking action to conserve fuel during winter months by state requirements on the number of days which high schools must remain in session, Harris said.

A reduction in highway speed limits would help conserve gasoline.

"The State of Nebraska, in my opinion, will have to take drastic steps in order to meet a potential emergency situation," Harris said.

"We need to conserve gasoline and other energy fuels in every way possible."

And only Gov. J. James Exon

together with the Legislature can "give us the leadership which can get a response from the people of Nebraska," Harris suggested.

"With all of the Nixon administration's political problems, I do not believe it is going to be in a moral position to ask us to cut back on our use of gasoline, fuel oil and their byproducts."

"It simply is not in a moral position to be able to successfully ask the nation to sacrifice."

But state executive and legislative leaders might persuade Nebraskans to join car pools, do more walking and bicycling, use the telephone in lieu of a business trip and "generally be more efficient in the everyday use of all the resources of the state," Harris said.

One idea which he would propose would be institution of "a series of Good Neighbor days" in Nebraska during which rural families would spend a day with friends to help save propane during especially cold winter months.

Farm trucks could probably also be shared to cut down the use of gasoline, Harris noted.

"I'm sure many other things can be done," he said. "But we need to get on this problem immediately."

"We should take steps now, not in January when the Legislature comes back into session. That's too late."

Harris, a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor in 1974, said his proposals are not offered in the form of criticism.

"My main point is that the State of Nebraska is going to have to act to take care of itself."

"I think there definitely is going to be a federal allocation of oil and gasoline which will extend to all byproducts."

"When the allocation comes, it will be a political allocation as well as a physical allocation according to needs. We need to be prepared for that."

Mothers Of Twins Aided By Sharing Of Know-How

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

If you have a set of twins who are double trouble, Lincoln's Parents of Twins Club (LPTOC) might be the place for some inside know-how on the "how to" of raising two.

"I don't know what I would have done without LPTOC," sighed Pat Snyder, mother of 19-month-old twin girls. There's no comparison with raising one child alone and with bringing up a set of twins, she offered.

Hints of how to feed two crying, hungry babies at one time and the do's and don'ts of dressing alike keep the conversation lively at the group's monthly meetings.

Mary Brehm, whose twin boys are now four years old, joined the club when the twins were just three months old. She found suggestions and short cuts offered by mothers in the group invaluable.

And for those parents who think their twins are "twice as naughty," Mrs. Brehm feels that LPTOC members provide support and encouragement.

Echoing the importance of the supportive role, Mrs. Snyder noted that she learned "how to cope" by talking to people with the same kinds of problems.

Most of what is passed on as helpful hints are the "practical things you learn by living through them," remarked Jean Schmeling, mother of a girl-boy set of three-year-olds.

Editor of the club's monthly newsletter, Mrs. Schmeling incorporates national research and scientific studies done on twins into the bulletin she puts together.

She noted that last year several sets of twins from the group were video-taped and recorded in their homes by University of Nebraska-Lincoln educational psychologists in a study to determine at what age children develop attachments to each other and whether this happens earlier with twins.

Other learning experiences for the group have ranged from panels by sets of teenage twins who explain what it's like to be half of a duo to talks by local pediatricians.

Affiliated with a national parent organization whose motto is "where God chooses the members," LPTOC is always on the look-out for new members.

Each new mother of twins is visited in the hospital by a LPTOC member and is given a booklet "And Then There Were Two."

According to Jeanette McArthur, president of the club and mother of 13-year-old twin girls, there is, on the average, one twin birth a month in Lincoln.

Mrs. McArthur pointed out that twins occur about once in every 80 births. For parents of twins, there's a one in nine chance of their producing another pair, she added.

In spite of all the extra work in having twins, Mrs. McArthur summed up the feelings of the people interviewed when she said "we enjoy them more than we have problems with them."

News Summary

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — President Nixon's lawyer told Chief Judge John J. Sirica that two presidential conversations considered critically important to the Watergate investigation were not recorded, and that the President could not comply with a court order to deliver the tapes because they never existed. The lawyer, J. Fred Buzhardt, said the recording equipment had not been hooked up to the President's telephone when he spoke with John N. Mitchell three days after the Watergate break-in and that the system did not work when the President met with John W. Dean III on April 15, 1973. (More on Page 1.)

Air Service To Be Cut

New York — Air service over much of the nation will be cut back beginning Thursday to meet federal fuel allocations. In what is expected to be the greatest single service cutback, competitive flights will be eliminated on 15 routes and smaller planes will be substituted on five others.

Israel Warned To Retreat

Cairo — Egypt's President Anwar Sadat warned that pressure from his army would force him to renew the war if Israel has not withdrawn to the Oct. 22 cease-fire line by the time Secretary of State Kissinger visits Cairo next week.

Golda Meir Flies To Washington

Tel Aviv — Israel's Premier Golda Meir left for Washington, leaving behind a nation divided over her government's handling of the war. While Mrs. Meir spoke of her "mission to a great and very friendly power," many Israelis are nervous about their near total dependency on the United States. (More on Page 2.)

Mrs. Meir Arrives To See Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir arrived here Wednesday in an effort to clarify the United States position on the Middle East. At the same time, President Nixon met with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy on the same subject.

Mrs. Meir told reporters that relations between her country and the United States are very friendly, but she noted that problems arise frequently between friends.

"There are problems that have to be clarified," Mrs. Meir said.

Alert Ended

Washington (AP) — The Pentagon ended Wednesday its worldwide military alert called last week as 350,000 servicemen returned to normal duties.

However, she said it was "an oversimplification" to suggest that the United States has exerted undue pressure on her country concerning a settlement with the Arabs.

Mrs. Meir will meet Thursday with President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. She initiated the visit to the United States after learning that Kissinger was planning a trip next week to several Arab capitals and after Fahmy asked to see Nixon in Washington.

Kissinger told reporters Wednesday morning after a private meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee "we believe we are making progress" on both implementing the cease-fire and on arranging the beginning of peace talks.

Cochairman Ousted For Criticizing Soviet Tactic

Moscow (UPI) — The American delegation at the World Congress of Peace Forces ousted one of its cochairmen because of a speech in which he accused the Soviet government of waging a campaign against intellectuals.

Delegation sources said that in a closed meeting, the delegation voted, 67 to 3 with two abstentions, to oust the Rev. Paul Mayer of East Orange, N.J., who represents the People Coalition for Peace and Justice.

Mayer told the human rights commission at the congress that the Soviet Union consistently silences "not only intellectuals

Mrs. Meir turned back nearly all questions at the airport, saying she would hold a news conference Thursday after her meetings with Nixon and Kissinger.

She was effusive in her praise of the American support of Israel during the recent fighting and of President Nixon personally. "I've come to Washington, come to a friendly country, a friendly government and a friendly President," the Prime Minister said.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, meanwhile, insisted that Israeli forces in Egypt must pull back as a first step toward Middle East peace. He told a Cairo news conference there will be no exchange of war prisoners until the Israelis return to the Oct. 22 cease fire line.

Sadat responded with an emphatic "no" to the idea of direct peace negotiations with Israel, but said once disengagement starts, an international peace conference on the Middle East could begin under U.N. auspices.

Israel announced that Egypt's surrounded 3rd Army on the eastern bank of the Suez was resupplied again on Wednesday by a truck convoy driven by United Nations forces. The Israelis had disputed Sadat's contention that Egyptian forces could easily defeat Israeli units on the west bank of the Suez. Sadat said his officers were pressing him to let them wipe out the west bank Israeli forces but that he was holding back to give Nixon time to prevail upon the Israelis to withdraw.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Columnist Mike Royko wrote on this page about the merits of distrust of political figures and it reminded this writer of his own inherent distrust of all public officials. But is possible that distrust is not really the right word, that something such as an obsession for the truth is more like it.

One thing is absolutely sure — any newspaperman who accepts at face value whatever a public official tells him is going to be a dismal failure. One can think back through many years of newspaper work and still not come up with the name of one public official whom he thoroughly trusted.

What this means is that the reporter simply does not stop with whatever a single source might want to tell him. The good reporter will go on to ask that source the tough and embarrassing questions or to check the information received with still other sources.

When you think about the attack made by President Nixon against the press in his recent press conference, you really have little trouble in understanding it. What reporters constantly do, in effect, is to ask a public official if he or she is telling the truth.

In a sense, the reporter reverses the traditional assumption of innocence and assumes, instead, guilt that must be proven otherwise. A good reporter may take what he gets and go with it (write his story) but he is never totally confident that he has gotten all the relevant facts there are to get.

It is easy to see, in such a situation, that public officials will often come to dislike reporters. If there was someone around constantly challenging the veracity of what you said, you might get to dislike that individual. And with the President of the United States, there are constantly dozens of people doing this.

But does all this simply make the reporter a rather obnoxious individual? Well, many public officials and others may think so but such is not the case.

The reporter is much like the scientist in the laboratory. The man or woman devoted to finding a cure for cancer, for instance, accepts nothing at face value. He or she can take nothing for granted and nothing is assumed without absolutely positive proof.

What things may seem to be in the world of science is nothing but a starting point, even if that. The very simple reason for this and the reason one can draw such an analogy is that the scientist and the reporter are both in search of the same thing — the truth.

There is no other way to find the truth than to doggedly pursue it, than to continually challenge whatever is presented as the truth, than to probe and question without end.

In the case of communications and the news, this does not always produce the best results, certainly not always pleasant results. There are times when someone or some publication may go so far in its search for the truth that it reaches the point of distortion.

Such, we believe, was the case in news accounts that implied by asking the question that President Nixon had contrived a national military emergency last week in order to divert attention from troubling domestic affairs. This, however, is the exception rather than the rule and there is no acceptable alternative.

The President himself has encouraged such things as the speculation on the military emergency by his constant refusal to level with the American people for one reason or another. And while the search for the truth may be disquieting at times, satisfaction with anything less would be deadly to our society.

MARIANNE MEANS

One Mile From The White House

WASHINGTON — The grey world of Pastor Duke Lundeen is less than one mile from the White House, but it is light years away in terms of people and power.

The crumbling of the Nixon Administration is only a matter of distant curiosity in Lundeen's ghetto. Its black residents have believed all along that Nixon was up to no good.

Besides, the inner city has its own kind of squalor, although born more from poverty of pocketbook than poverty of spirit.

Lundeen is an earnest, middle-aged, middle-class Scandinavian Lutheran who came to the nation's capital 11 years ago in the midst of white America's enthusiasm for improving the lot of poor urban blacks. But a great deal of emotion and politics has flowed over the dam since then, and the suburbs have decided to go back to worrying about college costs and to forget about trying to educate black competitors.

Augustana Lutheran Church, an island of white propriety in the middle of the capital's riot area, has changed with the times. After Lundeen arrived, the congregation willingly welcomed new black members, and soon blacks composed one-third of the body.

But Lundeen began spending more time with the community and less with the congregation. He felt that preaching the Gospel on Sunday to an elite corps who were a captive audience wasn't enough.

The church has gradually become the neighborhood's most vigorous social agency — supported financially and psychologically more by government and private industry grants than by the members of the congregation. Sunday school classes indoctrinating the young Lutheran theology have gone to seed, but daytime and evening classes for all ages in a wide variety of educational programs are flourishing.

Meanwhile, the congregation has dwindled by nearly 50 per cent, and regular worshippers number only about 150, although technically the church still has more than 400 members. It was probably inevitable. Most of the whites have long ago moved to safer sections of the metropolitan area.

Lundeen thinks that in this era of disillusionment with government and social institutions the Church should be the logical place to which people turn, not necessarily for Gospel but for reassurance that the moral life is still the right life. This has led him into an experiment that may develop into the church's most useful service to its community.

Augustana Lutheran now runs a mental health clinic, a relatively new field for a religious organization. The historic religious view of mental disturbance is that the victim is possessed of the Devil and to be shunned; enlightenment came only the past couple of decades.

These are anxious times, and mental serenity can be no less important to the unemployed black than to the captain of industry. The clinic has 75 patients, and they suffer insecurities and confusions similar to the better-fed set; most of the problems are related to family, work, and peer-group adjustments.

"If a fellow's got his head on straight, he isn't going to go out and rob the corner grocery," Lundeen says.

Lundeen hasn't given up the rummage sale or bedside visit to the sick, but he is trying to reach far beyond that. Somehow, he doesn't think Sunday stuffed-shirt services in the White House are much of an answer either.

'I Have What It Takes'

Stronger County Board

The Lancaster County Board of Commissioners has nearly concluded action on the hiring of a new administrative assistant. Both the position itself and the individual will constitute a new event for the county and one that ought to pay a number of dividends in the future.

This new addition to county government has been recommended by consultants and by a citizens advisory group. There should be at least two areas of benefit from the county board moving to an administrative assistant.

For one thing, this position should add an element of unity to the board by giving it a focal point in advance in matters of board concern. The board will now be able to look at a firm recommendation or conclusion on the part of the assistant, which should contribute to greater board unanimity.

We are not suggesting that the board will become a rubber stamp for its administrative assistant or that all disagreement among board members will now cease, nor that this should happen, but only that a greater degree of harmony may now prevail than has sometimes been the case in the past.

Additionally, this new position should strengthen the hand of the board in its dealings with other county officials by making the board more and better informed. The assistant should be a valuable resource center for the board, giving the board greater confidence in managing the affairs of the county.

One of the current weaknesses of county government is the firm dividing line between the board and the rest of the county. This line ought to be softened somewhat with the addition of an assistant to the board.

One might argue that the City Council should, also, have such an assistant. There may be some validity to such an argument but the council has always been more intimately associated with the executive branch of city government than the county board has been in its work with department heads.

This new appointment should help centralize county government responsibility, a long needed development.

Mayor's Unsatisfactory Answer

Mayor Schwartzkopf's explanation to the City Council about plans to open a Police Department substation in Gateway Shopping Center was far from satisfactory.

The mayor said that while he "didn't want any substation and Joe (Police Chief Carroll) didn't want any substation," there is "more crime in this area than anywhere else."

It follows then, that where crime is on the upswing, police protection should be increased.

But the public has been led to believe — by the mayor and police officials — that the Gateway substation will be little more than an office in which to fill out routine reports and as a place to reunite lost children with their parents, thus saving police officers the time spent driving to and from central police headquarters.

If the intent of the police department is to discourage crime in the Gateway area by the mere presence of a substation and the officers who use it, that intent might as well be flatly and honestly stated. The public will not be critical of that. But the city should be prepared to pay the costs of the substation, rather than accepting the space rent-free, as will be the case with the Gateway precinct. To accept the offer of free space only encourages the thought that the city's police protection is out for bid.

Mayor Schwartzkopf says that the Gateway facility will be used on a trial basis and if it proves useful, the council can budget the necessary rent money in next year's budget.

What is wrong with the city protecting its image by paying for the space during the trial period, out of the contingency fund or the mayor's office budget if necessary?

JAMES RESTON

The Middle East 'Miracle'

WASHINGTON — In his private briefing of congressional leaders on why he put the armed forces of the U.S. on world wide alert the other day, President Nixon took a decidedly pessimistic view of the Soviet Union's objectives in the Middle East.

If Moscow managed to get its seven airborne divisions into Egypt on the pretext of liberating the surrounded Egyptian Third Corps, he said, it would be hard to get them out of there again, and once established as the protectors of the Arab states, Moscow's influence on future shipments of oil would undoubtedly increase.

The United States, he added, was not dependent on Middle East oil; we could tighten our belts and live without it, but Japan and Europe got around 80 per cent of their oil from that part of the world, and he could imagine a situation in which Soviet domination of the Middle East might lead within five or 10 years to the communization of both Japan and Western Europe.

Why, if the Soviet Union had such vast geopolitical aims, could he tell the press the following day that we had suddenly passed from "the most difficult crisis" since the Cuban missile alert to the most hopeful outlook in the Middle East in 20 years?

"I think I could safely say," he told the press, "that the chance for not just a cease-fire . . . but the outlook for a permanent peace is the best that it has been in 20 years."

All this still seems a bit extreme. Last month the official line here was that the "detente" between United States and the Soviet Union was building a "generation of peace," then a few mysterious actions by Moscow put the Strategic Air Command bombers with their nuclear weapons in the air, whereupon the crisis not only ended as fast as it began, but we are back talking about "permanent" peace.

There is developing here a pattern of exaggerated language, and sudden dramatic action. Nobody of course can know much about the Soviet Union's motives or intentions and it can be dangerous to assume its good will or faith, but visions of the communization of Europe and Japan require almost as vivid an imagination as "permanent" peace in the Middle East.

Perhaps a more modest appraisal of U.S.-Soviet relations in the Middle East is in order. "Detente" is a useful word to express a common desire on the part of the two major nuclear powers to avoid a major war with one another, but that's about as far as it goes.

The Soviets did not allow their promises to Nixon to prevent them from conniving with the Egyptians and Syrians to attack Israel, or to encourage the other Arab states to get into the struggle and force the Israelis to fight on two fronts at the same time.

Moscow is trading more and more sophisticated arms for Arab oil, and as the demand for oil outruns the supply, it becomes more and more valuable to the Soviet Union as an instrument of pressure on Europe, Japan, and to a lesser extent the United States. Obviously, the more Moscow can increase its influence over the oil-producing states, the greater her influence will be in other parts of the world as well, and this is likely to be an enduring objective of Soviet policy — and similarly a vital interest of the United States to oppose the domination of the Middle East by the Soviet Union or any other power.

Some modest gains have been made toward direct negotiations. For the first time, the Israelis and the Arabs will negotiate with one another, but Prime Minister Golda Meir didn't decide to fly to Washington because Israel's long-range position is better as a result of this latest war. Israel has gained some more

Patchwork Prairie Country

The weather cleared, the crops had an opportunity to dry out somewhat and The Farmer went to the field to combine milo. So what happened? He made one cut across the field and had just started down through the field and the clutch went out of the combine. Really, I thought, this shouldn't happen to any farmer who was working under pressure.

While he was working at the side of the combine removing the clutch, I noticed the back pocket of his overalls was torn . . . the one in which he carries his billfold.

Well, sure enough when he felt in the pocket, the billfold had slipped out . . . probably, he said, in the milo field where the breakdown occurred. He had crawled beneath the machine and no doubt he had caught the pocket as he worked and lost the billfold.

I stumbled through the field of stalks thinking . . . really, this shouldn't happen to any farmer's wife who was working under pressure.

After searching and re-searching the area, I decided it was not in the milo field. It was found in the yard by the machine shed. When The Farmer had cleaned the truck he no doubt had caught the pocket somewhere on the truck box and lost it.

After a quick trip to the farm store, he was able to make the repairs on the clutch by evening although he had lost a good half a day.

The following day the battery on the combine wouldn't start the machine . . . something he had not anticipated since the combine had been checked before harvest and was in fine running order.

A hurried trip back to the farmyard for the battery cables so the combine could be started from the pick-up truck and everything would be in running order. Now, really, I thought, such things shouldn't happen to a farmer's dog.

As of this writing, all is working well . . . but the day isn't over yet.

Picturesque portraits I would like to frame for the keeping: A country road shaking the goldenrods from its shoulders.

Strange wings at dusk over the marshes as new birds gather for their migration south.

A climbing rose now half wild clawing at the windows of an old abandoned house.

The morning sun picking out the topmost branches of a maple tree glistening it with frost.

A tatter of clouds parted by the brilliant rays of an early morning sun.

A ground squirrel closing his door for a long winter's nap.

Sumac scrawling a line of living flame along a fence row.

The cottonwood tree shaking down a bagful of golden leaf coins.

A combine, like a hungry bee crawling through the milo field devouring all the grain as it goes.

A little boy's hand-carved Jack-o-lantern with its crooked grin and off center nose.

The copper, reds and golds of fallen leaves that cover the earth like an old-fashioned piece quilt.

Little girls running through the leaves scattering them every bit as effectively as a whirl wind.

Me, deep in the repleant beauty of bronze and golden days listening to Autumn's footsteps as the ghosts of summer quietly pass.

JACK ANDERSON

Rebozo, O'Brien And Hughes

WASHINGTON — Not long after Bebe Rebozo took a $100,000 cash gift intended for President Nixon from industrialist Howard Hughes, the President's friend joined in a White House plot to link Hughes to the Democrats.

This amazing double-cross is revealed in confidential White House memos, which we have uncovered in the course of investigating Rebozo's role as a money raiser for the President.

The memos show that in January 1971, White House staff chief H. R. Haldeman sought to plant stories in the press tying the eccentric Hughes to Democratic national chairman Larry O'Brien.

This was only a few months after Rebozo had received the last of two $50,000 installments, paid in $100 bills, from a Hughes aide. Yet Rebozo apparently had no hesitation to help expose the financial ties between the phantom billionaire and the Democrats.

Rebozo was careful to request, however, that he be kept informed "if any action be taken with regard to Hughes" because of "his own dealings with the Hughes people."

Both Haldeman and John Dean, therefore, knew of Rebozo's dealings with Hughes, although the memos don't make clear whether they were aware the billionaire had slipped Rebozo $100,000 for the President.

Haldeman decided, nevertheless, to go ahead with the plot even if it meant "embarrassing" Hughes. Haldeman instructed Dean, however, to keep "Bebe out of it at all costs."

Haldeman asked White House counsel John Dean in a memo, dated January 18, 1971, to begin "an inquiry into the relationship between Larry O'Brien and Howard Hughes."

Dean reported back his "preliminary findings" on January 26, 1971. Among others, Dean spoke to Rebozo.

"I discussed the matter with Bebe Rebozo who indicated that his information regarding (a retainer paid by Hughes to O'Brien) had come from Robert Maheu, the recently released head of Hughes' Nevada operation," reported Dean.

"Bebe said that this information had come to his attention at a time when Maheu was professing considerable friendliness towards the administration, but that it was not documented information. Bebe indicated that he felt that Maheu had possibly retained O'Brien for his services without any direct knowledge by Hughes himself.

"Bebe is under the impression that Maheu had a good bit of freedom with Hughes' money when running the Nevada operation. Bebe further indicated that he felt he could acquire some documentation of this fact if given a little time and that he could proceed to try to get any information he could.

"He also requested that if any action be taken with regard to Hughes that he be notified because of his familiarity with the delicacy of the relationships as a result of his own dealings with the Hughes people."

Dean also reported that Robert Bennett, son of Sen. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, represented Hughes. "Bennett informs me," wrote Dean, "that there is no doubt about the fact that Larry O'Brien was retained by Howard Hughes and the contract is still in existence . . . Bennett also indicated that he felt confident that if it was necessary to document the retainer with O'Brien that he could get the (documents)."

Two days after receiving Dean's report, Haldeman sent him confidential instructions.

"You should continue to keep in contact with Bob Bennett, as well as looking for other sources of information on this subject," Haldeman directed. "Once Bennett gets back to you with his final report, you and Chuck Colson should get together and come up with a way to leak the appropriate information.

"Frankly, I can't see any way to handle this without involving Hughes . . . The problem of 'embarrassing' him seems to be a matter of degree. However, we should keep Bob Bennett and Bebe out of it at all costs . . ."

As it happened, we were the recipients of the White House leak. We reported on August 6, 1971, that "Hughes' lieutenants offered to subsidize Larry O'Brien so he could serve without pay as Democratic national chairman during the 1968 campaign."

We quoted O'Brien who acknowledged he had been "sounded out by Maheu in 1968" but insisted he "never drew a dime from the Hughes interests during the campaign." Several months later, we reported, O'Brien was retained by Hughes.

We have spoken to O'Brien again for an updated comment. "If they'd wanted to know about my relationship to Hughes," he said, "they could have looked at the public record . . . If they didn't want to look at the public record, they could have saved themselves the trouble by simply calling me on the telephone."

O'Brien said his fee was "a personal matter between me and my clients." But in a letter to Maheu, dated August 21, 1968, O'Brien said his "annual fee would be $180,000, payable in monthly installments."

Haldeman told us through his lawyer that he remembers the exchange of memos but doesn't remember the outcome. Dean and Rebozo refused to comment.

Independent Prosecutor Favored

By LOUIS HARRIS

By 57-21%, a majority of the American people prefer "a new special prosecutor" for the Watergate investigation, who is "completely independent of President Nixon" and "appointed by the courts or by Congress," rather than a man who would serve under the President in the Justice Department. Thus, by better than two to one, the public has come down against the President who just last Friday said he wanted another special Watergate prosecutor who would be part of the Justice Department.

A majority of 58-21 percent thought the President "was wrong to fire former Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox" last week and 55% thought both former Attorney General Elliot Richardson and former Deputy Attorney General William French Smith were right to leave their offices in protest.

Basically, the American people lay great store on what Judge

Louis
Harris
Firing
Deplored

Sirica will find in the nine tapes President Nixon has agreed to turn over to him. By 56-31%, Nixon was viewed as "doing the right thing" when he changed his mind and consented to hand over the tapes. However, by 56-30%, most people also felt he agreed to turn over the tapes "only because he knew he would be impeached if he didn't."

By 63-23%, a solid majority feel that "if the tapes show he was involved in the Watergate cover-up, President Nixon should resign or be impeached." But by an almost identical 64-23% margin, the people also think "if the tapes show President Nixon was not involved in Watergate, then the country should join behind him in a show of national unity."

By a relatively narrow 41-32% a plurality expressed disbelief of the statement that "Nixon would not have handed over the tapes unless he had altered or fixed them to eliminate all evidence damaging to himself."

After the hectic events of the past 10 days, the net shift in public opinion has been a gross feeling that Richard Nixon's continued tenure in the White House rests squarely on proof or disproof of his involvement in Watergate or its cover-up. The number who think he "should resign if it is proven that he knew about the coverup" has risen from 50-39% as of last Monday. Comparably, "if the U.S. Senate Watergate Committee decides that he was involved in the Watergate cover-up," a 52-34% majority thinks "Congress should impeach President Nixon," up from 47-39% who felt that way five weeks ago.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Wife Trusts No one

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: — "We're in our 50s and have been married 30 years. Our chief conflict is my wife's suspicious nature. I'm really getting sick of it. We've moved to a new part of town but she still drives six miles back to the old neighborhood for shopping because she doesn't trust the merchants here. She doesn't trust strangers who say hello, and won't open the door for anyone she's not expecting. She doesn't want to meet the neighbors on either side of us because she says she doesn't trust them. On the political scene she doesn't trust Nixon, Agnew, Kennedy, or hardly anyone except Barry Goldwater. And she says quite candidly that she's not quite sure about me. On the contrary, I trust nearly everyone and have yet to be burned. What's to be done?"

ANSWER: — You'll just have to be tolerant and remind yourself things would be worse if she were hooked on alcohol, high living, shoplifting, or extramarital adventures. Human nature comes in dozens of variations and a certain percentage of humans come endowed with more than their share of suspicion.

QUESTION: — "I need a new winter coat, but the one I want costs $110 and I simply can't afford it. We're retired and have to watch every dollar. A friend urged me to go to a thrift shop sponsored by a local hospital where they sell used clothing. She says there's a good used coat like the one I want for $25. But do you blame me for refusing to wear someone else's cast-off clothing?"

ANSWER: — What are you afraid of? Clothing sold in thrift shops has been cleaned and usually has a lot of wear left in it. If your pride is bothering you, be logical and remind yourself it is no different to buy clean used clothing than it is to buy used houses, used automobiles, used jewelry, or antique furniture which may have had dozens of owners. Many older folks contend that thrift shops are one of their best sources for clothing which keeps them attractively garbed at very little cost.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Thursday

The president of Local 500, International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, in Vancouver, Canada, claims that he successfully administers through the aid of astrology. Louis Kaufman, 38, is quoted as stating, "I can represent my men and negotiate with their employers with confidence and strength because I know, from analyzing their horoscopes, exactly what sort of person I'm dealing with." The forthright Kaufman, a Scorpio, has been elected president of his waterfront union every year since 1964, except for 1971, when he voluntarily stepped down for a time to take his old job on the docks. But Kaufman is back now as president, declaring, "The study of astrology has given me tools by which I can understand how to deal with people."

Tech College Board Studies Uniform Tuition Policy

By The Associated Press
The State Board of Technical Community Colleges has taken a first step toward developing a uniform policy on tuition help for students.

Dr. Robert Schleiger, board executive director, said Wednesday he has appointed an eight-member committee to study the subject.

Although former junior and community colleges have been brought into the community college system, some have retained their former scholarship and tuition grant policies. A lack of uniformity therefore exists, Schleiger noted. Schleiger acknowledged that athletic scholarship policies will draw the greatest attention, but said "our concern is all tuition remissions."

Named to the study committee were Frank Kleager of the Western Nebraska Area Board, Scottsbluff; Frank Knapke of Omaha, of the State Vocational Education Board; Wesley Turtcher of Papillion, of the Eastern Nebraska Board; Arlo Wirth, Norfolk, Northeast Nebraska Board; Dr. William Hasemeyer, president of North Platte Community College; Dr. Donald Andrews, vice president of Omaha Technical Community College; Dr. Chester Gausman of Grand Island, president of the Central Nebraska area, and Dr. Robert Eicher of Lincoln, Southeast Nebraska area president.

A committee meeting at Scottsbluff Nov. 16 is tentatively planned.

Schleiger said a compilation shows $130,425 worth of tuition help being provided by the 12 colleges, with $84,224 of this going to athletes.

At McCook Community College, athletic tuition waivers are provided about one in eight students, and nearly half of the students receive some kind of scholarship help.

At the former Fairbury Junior College, now Nebraska Southern, about one-tenth of the students have scholarships, most of the athletic type.

Some schools provide no tuition help.

District Judges To Help Supreme Court Catch Up

By The Associated Press
The Nebraska Supreme Court will divide into two divisions next week and 15 district judges will sit with the court to help reduce a case backlog.

Two district judges and three Supreme Court judges will form one division and one district judge and four Supreme Court judges will form the other.

The district judges will serve for one day each.

On Monday the district judges will be Herbert Ronin and Wymore's Funds Request Okayed

The state has approved a $25-700 park development project for Arbor State Park in Wymore and forwarded the grant request to the U.S. Department of the Interior for federal approval, Gov. J. James Exon said Wednesday.

The funding would be 50% federal and 25% state and local if the grant gets final approval.

State Museum Gets High Rank

The vertebrate paleontology collection of the University of Nebraska State Museum has been rated among the top 10 in the nation by a committee of the Society of Vertebrate Paleontology.

The ratings published in the October news bulletin of the Society of Vertebrate Paleontology ranked the NU collection 9th in the top 10, which included only four other university related museums.

Goldwater Speaker
Dallas (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., will be the guest speaker Dec. 13 at a $100 a plate "Welcome John Connally" dinner.

William Hastings of Lincoln and Donald Brodkey of Omaha.

On Tuesday they will be Merritt C. Warren of Creighton, Patrick Lynch of Omaha and C. Thomas White of Columbus.

On Wednesday they will be Hugh Stuart of North Platte, John Kuns of Kimball and Robert Flory of Fremont.

On Thursday they will be Rudolph Tesar, Donald J. Hamilton and John E. Murphy of Omaha.

Friday they will be John D. Zeilinger of York, John C. Burke of Omaha and William F. Colwell of Pawnee City.

Exon Approves York Contracts

Gov. J. J. Exon announced his approval Wednesday of architectural and engineering contracts for the proposed $284,900 food service and activities facility at the York Women's Reformatory.

Exon said upon completion of the new facility and a separate cottage facility the existing East Hall, which currently contains food service and activities, would be demolished.

The food service section will include areas for dining, storage and kitchen space, the governor said, while the activities section would have an office, multipurpose room, game room, crafts room, music room and storage.

Fuel, Parts Shortages Hit Harvest

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Shortages of fuel and machinery parts are making harvest problems worse than normal for farmers.

"We are hearing of some shortages of diesel fuel and propane and some shortages of parts for farm equipment," said a spokesman for the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) in Lincoln.

ASCS has managed to gain the cooperation of oil companies to meet most of the fuel demand for combines and tractors. Propane shortages have been eased by good weather for drying crops, and the Midwest Farm Equipment Dealers Assn. is trying to find needed parts by polling its dealers.

"We will try to locate parts farmers need, but we must recognize that the dealers will try to protect their own customers first," said Leroy Barry, association executive secretary. "Those farmers who like to shop around for equipment won't get as good service as the man who has a good dealer and sticks by him."

Barry blamed the parts shortage on a combination of strikes at farm equipment plants, new safety and ecology laws that require expensive changes at many plants, and a shortage of labor at foundries.

"Many of the parts on farm machines are made by small local foundries," he said. "Some of these small plants were forced to close because of ecology problems or because of safety requirements. It is also difficult to get people who are willing to do this kind of work, so we have fewer plants making these parts."

Barry said some firms have machines ready to ship, except for one or two parts, and that a number of companies have already sold all the machines they will be able to make during 1974.

Crete Voters Okay School Bond Issue

Lincoln Star Special

Crete — Voters in School District 2 Tuesday approved a $2.75 million bond issue to pay for a new junior-senior high school, according to Saline County Clerk Ray Houska.

The vote was 950 for and 819 against, Houska said, in the district that includes Sprague-Martell, Hallam, Denton and Crete.

The $2.75 million figure will pay for construction of the new building and equipment for it, parking facilities and site improvements. The building is planned on a 43-acre site owned by the school district on the northeast edge of Crete.

Preliminary designs for the school showed space for 900 students, even though the student body currently numbers about 770. Students in grades 7-12 will attend the school. Future expansion of the building was also allowed for in the plans.

The new building will replace seven structures.

According to an earlier report by Al Papik, Crete Board of Education president, the bonds would be repaid in 25 years. He said the bond issue would necessitate an immediate increase in the building fund levy by 7.5 mills.

Houska said the initial mill levy requirement to finance the issue was about 10.5 mills, based on the present school district valuation of slightly more than $20 million. However, with the approval of the bond issue, the present sinking fund levy of four mills could be withdrawn.

Voters in the school district rejected a proposal in April 1969 for a junior-senior high school.

Holdrege Bond Issue Approved For New Gym

Lincoln Star Special

Holdrege — Voters in School District 74 approved a $100,000 bond issue Tuesday to pay for building a gymnasium as an addition to the existing school.

Duane A. Peterson, Phelps County clerk, said Wednesday the unofficial ballot count was 81 for the measure and 47 against. Peterson said the canvassing board will count disabled and absentee ballots Thursday, but noted there will not be enough incoming ballots to affect the outcome.

Union Officials Decline To Discuss Proposals

A union spokesman declined to reveal specific proposals for improving wages, hours and working conditions for 450 Department of Labor employees after the first meeting Wednesday between state officials and a negotiating team for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME.)

Bob Kessler, a national AFSCME organizer assigned to Nebraska, said, "Our proposal dealt with improvements in wages, hours and working conditions. But I don't want to get into specifics yet."

State Labor Commissioner

Gerald Chizek said he has "no reaction" at this time to the union's proposal.

"I listened to the recommendations. Now I want to take time to study them before I respond."

Chizek described the initial meeting as "very cordial" and said the next session has been tentatively scheduled for sometime next week.

Sale Of Sugar Firm Set For One Month

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—The signing of a purchase agreement and financing arrangements for the sale of the Great Western Sugar Co., to the Great Western Producer Cooperative, should take place within about one month, according to Robert Owen, the president of the cooperative.

However, Owen said here Tuesday, the transfer of title will not take place until sometime next spring, after the cooperative completes registration with the Securities Exchange Commission, and the stockholders in the parent corporation, Great Western United, Inc., give final approval for the sale of the sugar manufacturing firm.

Owen said the basic terms of the agreement are those agreed to last August, but that details have been under negotiation since that time.

He said the purchase plans were outlined in detail to the officers and directors of the grower associations during a September meeting.

The group gave unanimous approval for proceeding with the purchase, he said.

Owen said the price of the company and its assets will be about $95 million.

The assets include 17 sugar factories and their beet receiving stations; a special products factory at Johnstown, Colo.; several sales terminals; the Great Western Railroad; an office building here; an agricultural experimental station at Longmont, Colo.; interest in a beet seed producing firm; water rights, and farm land in Nebraska, Colorado, Michigan, Ohio, Kansas, Montana and Wyoming.

Owen said the cooperative will continue to maintain its headquarters here, and that no personnel changes were anticipated.

Grower financial responsibilities will remain unchanged, he added.

Opposition to the sale became evident in western Nebraska last December, and 118 members have resigned from the cooperative since then. An estimated 1,000 Nebraska sugar beet growers belong to the cooperative.

Total membership stands at about 5,400, or about 74 per cent of the growers in the seven Great Western states.

Owen said that despite the loss of some Nebraska members, the cooperative had gained more members than it had lost in the past year.

Gun Accident Fatal To Man

Omaha (AP) — Funeral services will be at St. Andrews Church in Omaha Thursday morning for Robert Ekholm, 44.

Police said the Omaha businessman died Monday night of an accidentally, self-inflicted shotgun wound to the head.

A family spokesman said he had just returned from a hunting trip and was cleaning a 12-gauge shotgun when it accidentally discharged.

Survivors include his widow and four children.

Armstrongs discovered they had a ridiculous number of beautiful, comfortable chairs... not only on the showroom, but in the warehouse too.

So they decided to sell them so low priced nobody could resist them.

Railroads Given 2% Rate Increase

The Nebraska Public Services Commission has granted Nebraska's railroads a 2% rate increase on intrastate freight shipments effective Nov. 12.

The 2% rate hike will be in effect until Jan. 1, 1974, when the cost for shipping within Nebraska will be upped by another .7%.

At an earlier public hearing, a representative of the Western Railroad Association told the commission that the increase is needed to offset $202.6 million in additional annual expenses to the Nebraska lines resulting from increased wages, retirement taxes and material costs.

The Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) has granted an identical rate hike for

Omaha Women Dies In Hospital

Omaha (AP) — A 75-year-old woman struck by a Salvation Army bus Sunday has died in an Omaha hospital.

Police identified her as Frances Coffman. She suffered head injuries when she was struck while crossing the street.

Korea To Compete

Seoul (AP) — South Korea's emerging auto parts industry is aiming at replacing Japan as a major subcontractor to U.S. automakers. Euh Bok-Lun, executive director of the Korea Automobile Industry Association, said.

shipments between states.

The rail spokesman said the increase was justified by the 4.06% rate of return experienced by the railroads on last year's investments.

The hike had been opposed by the Great Western Sugar Co., which threatened to transfer 175,000 tons of sugar beets from rail to truck transportation next year.

The firm contended that shipments of sugar beets should be exempt from the rate hike, since beets can be shipped in unit trains, are not easily damaged and require no special protection.

Accident Fatal To 2nd Man

An Oct. 21 accident on Hwy. 2 about one and one-half miles west of Palmyra has claimed its second victim.

Emil Beranek, 71, of Pawnee City died Wednesday morning at Bryan Memorial Hospital. He had been listed in critical condition since the accident.

Beranek was the driver of an eastbound car which was in collision with a westbound pickup truck driven by Steven Franks, 24, of 5615 L. Franks, who was alone in the truck, he died immediately.

Emil Beranek's wife, Elsie, 68, the only passenger in the Beranek auto, is listed in good condition at Bryan Memorial.

'Irish Capital Of Nebraska' Sets Crowning Of Centennial Queen

Seven eras covering the first century in the life of a city, brought to life with music, song and dance, and climaxed with the crowning of a queen to reign over the next hundred years.

That's the idea behind the Centennial Queen and Princess Coronation pageant to be held at O'Neill on Saturday, Nov. 10.

The selection of the queen and princess marks the formal start of O'Neill's Centennial celebration to take place next spring in the city already famous as the "Irish Capital of Nebraska."

A group of 12 colleens will be adding their beauty and charms to the list of countesses vying for the coveted queen's tiara while 17 younger lasses are candidates for the princess title.

Countesses for the pageant include Vicki Spittler, Carolyn Park, Nancy Poese, April Oberle, Chris Cole, Linda Heiser, Lori Matthews, Carmen Lubber, Deb Holz, Bonnie Forwood, Susan Price and Trish McCarville.

Princess candidates are Ellen Young, Patti Hammerlun, Amy Murdoch, Sharla Rae Nitsch, Cindy Murdoch, Natalie Nelson, Susan Bazelman, Lisa Goodwater, Cindy Prouty, Kate Becker, Teri Eby, Kailyn Connelly, Nancy Selting, Deann Clyde, Debbie Harvey, Sherry Ross and Rhonda Croft.

Music and songs for the pageant itself will be provided by O'Neill and St. Mary's high school instrumental and choral groups with dance numbers by members of the famous Irish Dancers under the direction of Vivian Melena.

Narration for the program is being arranged by Barbara Birmingham and Sandra Coke.

Judges for the pageant include two reigning queens, Norfolk's Judy Upton, the current Miss Nebraska; and Sharon Pelc of Ainsworth, Miss Southwest Nebraska of 1973.

Miss Upton, along with Leonard Pelc, Ainsworth; and Erwin Stone, Broken Bow; will judge the queen candidates. Miss Pelc, Mrs. Mike Smith, Gordon; and Mrs. Erwin Stone are princess judges.

There will be no talent or bathing suit competition in the pageant as the judges will meet the candidates informally before the pageant and also have the girls write a paragraph on "The Responsibilities of a Young Woman to Her Community" to show how they think and express themselves.

Kartman Given 60 Days For 2 Vehicle Homicides

Omaha (AP) — District Judge Theodore L. Richling Wednesday sentenced attorney G. Merrill Kartman to prison on two counts of motor vehicle homicide.

In finding Kartman, 39, guilty of probation violation, Richling said he had "an abundance of talent he has recklessly dissipated" and had "totally wasted" previous probation opportunities.

Kartman, involved in an auto accident in which three persons were killed, was sentenced to 60 days in jail and placed on two years probation last year. Tests showed he was drunk.

Kartman surrendered his Nebraska driver's license, but obtained an Oklahoma license. That license was forfeited earlier this year when Tulsa police said he refused to take a blood test after an accident.

Richling sentenced Kartman from one to 10 years on one count and to one year on the second count. The terms are to run concurrently. He also denied a request by Kartman's attorney that a $10,000 bond be continued, pending an appeal.

ENCOR Funds To Be Withheld

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—State Welfare Director Lawrence Graham said Wednesday he plans to notify the Eastern Nebraska Community Office of Mental Retardation (ENCOR) that its federal money will be withheld within 30 days.

Graham said the cutoff will come because of the State Office of Mental Retardation plan to withhold state matching funds from ENCOR.

An ENCOR official declined to comment, saying no word had been received from the welfare offices.

David Blume, director of the state office, said last week that ENCOR is receiving $556,000 from the state this year. This is used as part of the local matching funds needed to receive $2,592,000 in federal money.

He said the plan to withhold state money stems from what he called ENCOR's refusal to make information available.

Graham said that the Welfare Department, which administers the federal funds, has no choice but to withhold federal funds.

FROM ITALY—THE LAND OF WINES—

Mitch Tavlin, the Wine Merchant and Importer—offers the best of the Italian wines at his annual Fall wine sale. Wine buyers seldom give a thought to the Italian wines—this in spite of the fact that for many centuries Italy has been producing some of the world's greatest wines. Today, in the face of the drastic increase in the price of French and German wines Italian wines represent outstanding value since the price of these great wines is comparatively low. In fact, French wines of comparable quality would cost two or three times as much.

We offer the finest in Piemontese and Veronese wines at astonishingly low prices.

BAROLO—one of the ten best red wines in the world. The full gallon party size bottle is only	6.95 69.50 14.95 59.80
BARBERESCO 1966—big, powerful and robust, long-lived	6.95 69.50
BARDOLINO 1970—made from the Nebbiolo grape grown around Verona—Ideal with Pasta	2.89 28.90
SOAVE 1970—dry, crisp and fragrant white wine	2.89 28.90
VERDICCHIO 1970—considered to be the class of all Italian white wines—great with all light meats	2.89 28.90
SARASINO ASTI-SPUMANI—Italian sparkling wine which has no peer for all-around wine enjoyment	5.75 57.50

You may mix or match many of these wines to make up a quantity purchase and avail yourself of the case discount. And remember, you must be completely satisfied with your purchase or you don't pay one cent. MITCH TAVLIN carries one of the largest and most complete inventories of fine wine in the country and can offer you value unmatched by any dealer in this area. Be good to yourself—visit our Wine room for values—you can't do better anywhere else.

Frosted Grasses Safe To Pasture In One Week

A recent statewide frost has prompted a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension agronomist to advise that it is generally safe to pasture frosted sorghum, sudangrass and sorghum sudangrass hybrid one week after a freeze. Dr. W. J. Moline says that upon freezing, most of the prussic acid is released into the air.

The first killing frost is a signal to take precautionary measures when feeding frosted sudans or forage sorghums to livestock. This includes forage sorghums and hybrid sudan crosses.

Any growing sorghum or sudan plant may contain dangerous levels of prussic acids, particularly young plants, Moline said. But, contrary to what many believe, the prussic acid content of the old plants is not increased by freezing. Following a frost, any prussic acid in old plants goes off into the air in 3-5 days. He explained, "If regrowth is heavy, recommendations call for at least a two-week delay in grazing following frost to allow these young plants to mature."

Such plants also accumulate nitrates when growth is interrupted by frost. However, the possibility of nitrate poisoning is remote if ample hay and grain are fed along with frosted forages, Moline added.

CTU's Income Increases 14.9%

The net income of Central Telephone and Utilities rose 14.9% to $35,243,000 in the last year, according to the latest quarterly report. Operating revenues were reported up 14%, to $296,560,000. Earnings per share in creased from $1.67 to $1.85. Net income for the three months ending Sept. 30 was up 17.5%, from $7 million to $8,350,000. Earnings per share in creased from 37 cents in the same quarter last year, to 44 cents.

LT&T Earnings Go Up By 10%

Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph's net operating earnings increased almost 10% in the first nine months of 1973, according to the latest quarterly report. Earnings increased from $3,327,800 to $3,653,500. Earnings per share of common stock were $2.27, compared to $2.18 last year. Revenues increased 10%, from $28,113,800 to $30,924,400. For the three months ending Sept. 30, net earnings increased 7%, but income per share of common stock declined from 83 cents to 78 cents.

Queen To Hear Duke Ellington

LONDON (AP) — Duke Ellington and his orchestra will play at this year's Royal Vaudeville performance before Queen Elizabeth II, organizers announced Tuesday. The performance of entertainment stars aids theatrical charities and is one of the year's television highspots.

County-City Merger Topic Of First Meeting

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Some 25 Citizens' Advisory Committee members met for the first time Wednesday to organize and discuss task force recommendations made on merging city-county government.

It will be the committee's duty to review the various suggestions made on budgeting, fire protection, personnel, police, purchasing and public works then and make recommendations to the City-County Implementation Commission.

That commission has been charged with overseeing city-county merger efforts as outlined in the Arthur D. Little Report.

Recommendations

Task force chairman outlined recommendations made to date, with Joseph Ruschetti noting that the personnel task force will work with the Civil Service Commission in designing and implementing a standardized personnel system for Lancaster County.

Ruschetti noted "there seems to be two parallel lines of thought within the county on this."

Although the County Board has requested assistance from the Civil Service Commission on formulating a plan, he reported that the county elected officials prefer adopting Douglas County's plan. To adopt that plan, legislation would be needed.

When one of the committee members asked what was the basis of the officials' resistance to the Civil Service Commission's plan, Ruschetti replied, "I think their resistance, if any, is purely from a standpoint of misunderstanding."

"As a taxpayer and resident of the county," he said, "I would prefer taking the recommendations of professionals rather than having a system legislated for me."

County Board Chairman

Robert Colin said that regardless of which system is approved, "we need a standardized system."

Council Chairwoman Helen Boosalis urged that any recommendations on standardizing the county personnel system be kept in line with city policies on wages, fringe benefits and holidays. She noted that the Little Report is suggesting consolidation within a decade.

Another committee member asked police task force chairman James Ackerman if "the wisdom of electing sheriffs has been considered?"

Ackerman said the task force has been concentrating on reviewing the duties of both the county sheriff's office and the Lincoln Police Department, with an eye toward shifting most of the criminal functions to the police department and having the sheriff's office assume more non-police functions, such as detention.

Committee members were also urged by State Sen. Wally Barnett to consider putting necessary enabling legislation into the hopper as soon as possible.

Federal COG Plans Opposed By Lincoln

The City of Lincoln has gone on record opposing federal plans to make Councils of Government (COG) — regional planning agencies — mandatory.

In a letter to the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, Corporation Counsel Ralph Nelson stated that the formation of a COG in Lincoln-Lancaster County is not needed and would "destroy our efforts for improved governmental consolidation."

The City Council and mayor authorized Nelson to register the city's opposition after being told that the Department of Housing and Urban Development plans to require municipalities to form regional COG's.

Nelson pointed out that Lincoln is unique since over the years it has annexed five other municipalities.

"We do not have the problems facing so many cities — competing municipal governments, each with its own department," Nelson stated.

He attributed Lincoln's orderly growth to state laws on annexation and a law prohibiting the incorporation of a new town within five miles of Lincoln's corporate limits.

He noted that Lincoln now constitutes more than 91% of the county's population and constitutes 83% of the valuation of the taxable property in the county.

By making it mandatory for Lincoln to become part of an "umbrella COG," Nelson contended HUD would "weaken us instead of helping us."

Hoyt Case Clues To FBI Lab

By United Press International

Some material found by investigators probing the murders of a rural Culbertson couple has been sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation laboratory in Washington.

It was the first time since parts of two bodies began turning up in the waters of the Harry Strunk Lake more than a month ago that authorities had utilized the FBI laboratory, which is available to law enforcement agencies throughout the nation.

Frontier County Sheriff Lannie Roblee of Curtis said he "wasn't too sure" exactly what material was taken to the Washington lab.

Lt. Lynn Parks of the State Patrol's criminal division in Lincoln declined to elaborate specifically on the material concerned.

Parks said the items were "hand carried" by a state lab technician to Washington. He said they did not concern new developments in the case, but that they were portions of information found by investigators in the "McCook area" and not at the lake near Cambridge.

Authorities are nearly certain that the dissected body fragments found in the lake are those of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hoyt, who were last seen during a family dinner at their farm home Sept. 23.

County Courts Being Brought Up To Date

Omaha (AP) — Although the reorganization of Nebraska's county court system is working, more changes can be expected, James E. Dunleavy told the Nebraska State Bar Association House of Delegates Wednesday.

He said many county courts are bringing their dockets up to date for the first time in anyone's memory.

The reorganization, which went into effect Jan. 1, did away with the peace and police magistrate courts, and set up 43 county court districts run by judges, all of whom must be lawyers.

Dunleavy, Nebraska court administrator, said further changes which might occur

City's Plumbing Inspector Quits To Seek Union Post

The city's chief plumbing inspector has resigned his post to run for a fulltime position in the Plumbers and Steamfitters Local union.

Roy Godwin, a 15-year city employee, said the election will be held in mid-December. He said he resigned his post Tuesday so that he could devote full time to campaigning for the position in the union.

If elected, Godwin would represent 250 journeymen and apprentice plumbers and steamfitters.

As chief inspector, Godwin was in charge of inspecting all plumbing installations in the county and city and reviewing all building plumbing plans.

Godwin said one of the highlights of his career was the city's approval of the national plumbing code, on which he worked.

He was critical of his boss, Charles Seale, superintendent of building inspections, for "not understanding all plumbing inspections" and, Godwin said, for not knowing how to deal with licensed plumbers and the general public.

Service Station Break-In Probed

Police Wednesday were investigating a burglary at the Kerr-McGee service station at 2910 N. 48th in which $355 in cash and $100 in credit card sales slips was taken from an unlocked safe.

Police said the burglar or burglars apparently entered through a side door secured by a screwdriver pushed through an inside hasp. The door was apparently forced open several inches so the screwdriver could be removed, police said.

Auto Care Is Also For Women

GESTURING . . . Instructor Debbie Allen shows Faye Bjorgan some of the intricate parts housed under a car's hood.

Once a week this fall a dozen women have been huddling in a cool, damp garage to look, en masse, under the hoods of their family autos. Whether the wind is howling at the door, rain is splattering against the windows or sunshine is playing on the autumn leaves, the women have but one thought in mind during those two hours each week — that of learning all they can about what makes a car tick. The class is one of those special interest courses offered by the YWCA. Teaching the class in "Auto Maintenance For Women" is Debbie Allen, a former service station mechanic who now works in the parts department at a local Volkswagen dealership.

The fact that a woman is teaching the class has created a relaxed atmosphere. The students feel more comfortable about asking questions they feel a man would consider stupid.

"I can ask her questions, well, differently," commented one of the students, "and I can understand what she's saying."

And ask questions they do — about anything and everything.

Ms. Allen is put into the role of car doctor prior to each class. Her students besiege her with questions such as: "My car has been making funny sounds, whatever can be the matter with it?" or "I just bought a new battery and every morning when I try to start it to take the kids to school, it's dead. What's wrong?"

To each of those queries, Ms. Allen's response is, "I can't make a diagnosis until I know all the symptoms. It's just like you baking a cake and it flops. You don't know right away what you left out."

Although they are not getting on-the-spot solutions to their auto worries, the students are learning and practicing changing tires; what ignitions, points, plugs, and condensers are; how to do tune-ups and that they, themselves, can simply enough fill their car's battery with water.

"I could do it (fill the battery) with a pitcher but I'd feel silly carrying a pitcher of water out to my car," commented one of the students.

They also are learning the ins and outs of foreign as opposed to domestic models.

For example, Ms. Allen's statement that you "jack up foreign cars differently from American-made models" was greeted by a chorus of "Oh, I'm glad to know that."

Why they are pursuing such a special interest is just as varied as what they are learning, from the very basic to the technical.

When asked why they were enrolled in the class, the women offered a variety of reasons. Again, the novelty of a woman tuned in to auto mechanics was mentioned.

"I wanted to know what a woman knew about this (auto maintenance)," said one of the students. "When I heard a woman was teaching the course, I told myself, 'This I'm not going to miss.' She knows her stuff."

"Some men think women shouldn't know about these things," added still another who admitted she had previously taken a similar course but from a male.

But they also expressed a desire to learn how to cope with their cars.

"All I could do (before) was open the hood," observed another student. "I didn't even know what a fanbelt was . . . When my car went out (stalled) on the road I decided it was time. I don't think I will ever be a good mechanic but I don't want to be totally stupid either."

A young, single woman said she was taking the course because she didn't "know anything about cars and wanted to learn about basic maintenance and upkeep."

"I would like to have an idea of what might be the reason a car acts the way it does and not be completely helpless," said a middle-aged homemaker.

"I want to be able to talk to the mechanic," added a young homemaker.

Opening lead - ace of clubs.
 Dear Mr. Becker: I am taking the liberty of writing you even though I am primarily a devotee and practitioner of the ancient and honorable game of gin, at which game I can state with all modesty that there is no one who can hold a candle to me.

I realize you write only about bridge, because I have been reading your column lately, and that you may know little and care even less about gin, but I recently played a bridge hand that might interest you.

As you can see from the bidding (I was South) I am no green hand at the game, and my play likewise leaves very little to be desired. In fact, if I ever put my mind to the game, you would no doubt soon be out of a job.

I am merely wondering whether, by any chance, I overlooked any angle in this hand where I went down at three notrump.

West led the A-Q of clubs and I would have made the contract very easily except that East played the ace of diamonds and ace of spades on the first two tricks!

No matter how I figure it, I don't see how I can now make the hand. If East had discarded only one ace, I would have slid home with nine tricks, but two of them were too much for me. Could I have done anything to make the hand? Sincerely yours, Joe Blow.

Dear Mr. Blow: Not a thing. You were contending with super-human defense. I would judge that East is also a gin player. I understand that in gin the ace is the lowest card, and I guess East was discarding his low cards to maintain his other combinations. Once he elected to do this, West was sure to defeat you. Cordially yours, BJB.

Scandals In The Highest Office

How appropriate! Hope Ridings Miller, former society editor for the Washington "Post" and correspondent for "Town and Country" magazine, has written a book about the scandals that have touched the private lives of U.S. presidents from the days of George Washington up to the present.

For the most part, the ignominies she includes are not of the political variety. Rather, they concern the incidence — both rumored and actual — of extramarital dalliance on the part of this country's chief executives.

In "Scandals In The Highest Office" (Random House), Ms. Miller has succeeded in capturing in print what she refers to as the "Peyton Place atmosphere of Washington." But, as has been the case with soap operas from time immemorial, the material soon wears thin, and reading between yawns can become quite a chore.

The book itself isn't really that bad. Ms. Miller is serious about her topic, and there is nothing gossipy about her approach. She writes well enough, and beyond that has apparently done enough historical research to make the book convincing.

But shortly after the introduction, a 253-page seige of boredom sets in.

It becomes obvious in Ms. Miller's account, that the Republic will not disintegrate because one or another of its chief executives demonstrates — or allegedly demonstrates — an "improper" interest in the members of the opposite sex. Not, that is, if historical precedent has anything to do with it.

Why, even poor old George Washington wasn't exempt when the rumor mills started grinding — for the most part, after his death. During the latter part of the 19th century, public attention was focused on a number of letters written by Washington to the wife of one of his best friends.

According to Ms. Miller, the letters demonstrate that "the degree of the young Washington's attachment to Mrs. George William Fairfax can only be surmised; but, at least, the indication that he was infatuated with her over a long period fits John Adams' definition of an inaccuracy — 'It squints at the truth.'

And then there was the rumor — unfounded in Ms. Miller's estimation but popular during its day — that Alexander Hamilton was Washington's illegitimate son.

Things didn't get any better when the newly-established Democratic-Republican Party took power with Thomas Jefferson as its standard-bearer. Among other things, Jefferson's detractors popularized the story that he kept one of his Monticello slaves as a mistress for a period of years.

The author finds this charge to be based on "circumstantial evidence." But, since it "cannot be disproved, it has subsisted through the years on racial hatreds."

Andrew Jackson married a woman who already had a husband. And although it was an oversight on his part (he thought — as did his new bride — that her divorce had been finalized), his hastiness returned to plague him during the election of 1828.

The list of executive transgressions — unsubstantiated, with the exception of a few cases — goes on and on: Martin Van Buren was allegedly the illegitimate son of Aaron Burr; rumors of Abraham Lincoln's abiding love for Ann Rutledge, and that he fathered an illegitimate daughter, continued long after his death.

Grover Cleveland was accused of having an extramarital affair which resulted in a son; and, in fact, he did not deny the paternity and went to some effort to support the youngster.

The good people of the United States were scandalized when Woodrow Wilson remarried shortly after his first wife's death; and his reputation as a "skirt chaser" was not enhanced by his apparently innocuous friendship with Mrs. Thomas D. Peck.

Warren G. Harding allegedly "consorted with a mistress in the White House." And, according to accounts which have recently come to light, FDR's

"working" relationship with Eleanor was supplemented by way of his ill-defined involvement with his wife's social secretary.

Some will be happy to note that Richard Nixon, along with a few others such as Harry Truman, is beyond reproach — at least in this particular sphere: "Throughout his political career, he has been fortunate in that his detractors have been consistently deprived of at least one stick that flayed the reputation of so many of his White House predecessors."

At the end of all this, the response that comes most immediately to mind is a resounding "So what?"

The country has not been sold down the river by the real or imagined Don Juan-ism of its heads of state. And, in retrospect, the furors that have swirled about the executive mansion have been nothing less than absurd.

Ms. Miller sums it up rather well: "... malicious attention to either the presumed or actual personal peccadilloes of exceptionally able chief executives has seldom affected their efficiency in office. Otherwise, our country might have been deprived of the services of its most illustrious leaders."

Reader Offers 'Food For Thought'

DEAR ABBY: I'm going to have to disagree with you on this one. Obedience to one's parents is not the highest and greatest good, not even for a 13-year-old. Anyone, even a child, is morally obligated to disobey authority when authority demands something that violates the conscience. This principle was brought home to me by my eldest daughter when she was seven, upon her hearing the story of Abraham and Isaac for the first time. "It's wrong to kill," declared my precocious moralist, "and you should never do what you know is wrong, even if God tells you to." By the same principle, it is similarly wrong to refrain from doing good because one has been forbidden to do it.

dear

Susan's friend, if she is sufficiently courageous, should tell her mother that she regrets the necessity of being disobedient, but that she cannot conscientiously be obedient in this instance. She should then offer to accept whatever reasonable punishment the mother may care to impose, and then endure the punishment with as much courtesy and stoicism as she can muster.

The kind of obedience you advocate for Susan's friend is qualitatively the same as that of the Nazis who were "only obeying orders" when they slaughtered Jews. The matter involved is not so serious as murder, that's all.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

DEAR FOOD: Your letter is more than "food for thought" — it's an intellectual banquet.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has the women in his office running errands all over town in his 1973 limousine. When I tell him it looks bad, he says their own cars are either falling apart or their gas tanks are empty.

I suggested that he buy a company station wagon and put the name of his company on the door, and have the girls run his errands in that. He says: "I'm not letting the small town gossips run my business just because they have poisoned your mind about how it looks." I told him I poisoned my own mind on the subject. Meanwhile, I drive a small economy car to run my errands.

What do you think about this?
THE POORER HALF

DEAR POORER: I can understand your annoyance at having your husband's women employees driving his '73 limousine all over town on errands, but there's a better reason for suggesting he get a company car. It would be a legitimate company expense — and save gasoline!

DEAR ABBY: To "SORRY," who shoplifted a small item, was caught, arrested and prosecuted, and has her name on a file in the court records. If you have been in no legal difficulty for a year following this incident, you should go to the probation department and inquire about the possibility of "sealing" your records.

Once your records are "sealed," it is as tho they never existed, and you may apply for a job without mentioning the fact that at one time you had this record.

I know this is done in California and New Jersey. A lawyer can tell you in which other states "sealing" is possible. There is no earthly reason why anyone who committed a minor crime between the ages of 18 and 21 should have this on his "record" for life.

Chamber Given Update Preview

Lincoln Chamber of Commerce board members were given a preview of the Central Business District (CBD) development program at their monthly meeting Wednesday.

Richard White, chairman of the Downtown Advisory Committee, explained how the consulting firm of Barton-Aschmann Associates, Chicago, will carry out its eight-month update of the CBD plan.

The $84,000 price tag for the project is expected to come from the city coffers, noted White.

He told board members that Barton-Aschmann expects to begin work next Monday "even though the contract is not yet signed."

White expects that the City Council will ratify and sign the contract at its Monday meeting.

With July 1 as a target date for final documents and models to be presented, the study, White explained, will be divided into four time spans. Major work sessions and local review will come at the completion of each span.

Paul Amen, who serves both on DAC and the Chamber board, noted that all the emphasis in this study would be on implementation. "It's not a plan to sit on a shelf and gather dust," he added.

In other business, Lanning Jorgenson, director of the Lincoln Center Development Association, reported that oral arguments on the city services building litigation are expected to take place the first Wednesday after Thanksgiving.

"It looks optimistic," he told the group.

Also on the agenda was the passing of a resolution giving the Chamber's full recognition and moral support to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's efforts to produce the opera "Abelard and Heloise."

Exon Said 'Playing Politics With Taxes'

By The Associated Press

Gov. J. James Exon's suggestion that the State Board of Equalization hold its annual tax rate-setting session on Nov. 14 or 15 prompted Republican National Committeewoman Pat Lahr Smith of Lincoln to complain Wednesday that the Democratic governor is "playing politics with the board."

She noted that Secretary of State Allen Beermann, a board member and a Republican, will be out of the city on National Guard duty at that time. She said both Exon and State Tax Commissioner William Peters, board, secretary, were aware of the schedule conflict and the fact "Beermann cannot get out of the commitment."

Mrs. Maurer To NWU Board

Mrs. Judith Maurer of Walton, a second grade teacher for the Waverly school district at Eagle, has been elected to the Nebraska Wesleyan University board of governors.

She replaces George Lincoln of Lincoln, who resigned after he purchased a Lincoln-based school book firm.

She is a 1969 graduate of the institution

"The Democratic administration has seen fit to play politics with taxes by trimming the Republican members on the board down to two," Mrs. Smith said.

Other board members are State Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson and State Treasurer Wayne Swanson, both Republicans.

Beermann had complained earlier that he had been unable to learn when the meeting would be held, and had been unable to obtain recent tax information on which to make a judgment.

State law sets Nov. 15 as the deadline date for the equalization board to set state sales and income tax rates for the coming calendar year.

Exon last summer held out some hope that the board might be able to reduce tax rates from the present 2½% on sales, and 13% on individual income. Recent revenue trends have diminished that prospect, he said.

Pollution Suit Dismissed Due To Error

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

An error by a state lab technician has resulted in the dismissal of the first court action brought by the state against a polluter. The suit against Lester Sheen's Trailer Court near Kearney charging the owner with failure to install an adequate septic system was thrown out of court after a lab technician testified he incubated a water sample at the wrong temperature.

According to State Department of Environmental Control officials, water samples being tested to determine the tendency of pollutants to rob water of oxygen and thereby kill aquatic life should be incubated for five days at 20 degrees centigrade.

At the trial in Kearney, a lab technician testified the water sample taken from the trailer court was kept at 25 degrees centigrade.

Probably Done Right
A DEC official told the Star that the sample was probably kept at the correct temperature and that he believes the technician became confused on the witness stand.

Since that test was run at the state lab, the DEC has set up its own water quality testing lab at the Game and Parks Commission research building.

The DEC official speculated that the case could be refilled if new water samples were taken.

However, the owner of the trailer court has reportedly agreed to bring his septic system up to state standards. DEC officials intend to take "a wait-and-see" attitude before deciding whether to refile a suit.

A second suit against the Twilight Hills Sanitary Improvement District in Omaha was dropped after sewage treatment plant officials upgraded the operating efficiency of the plant.

A third suit against Corema, a Sarpy County smelting plant, is currently still in court, according to DEC attorney Dick Hansen.

The DEC has also reportedly reached an agreement with McCook Packing Co. which was cited for feedlot run-off, water pollution and solid waste pollution. After a recent meeting with firm officials, the firm agreed to cease discharges of waste water into a stream and to pump the waste into the municipal sewer system.

McCook Packing also reportedly agreed to halt its dumping of paunch manure into a ravine. Hansen said DEC officials determined that the plant did not have a feedlot run-off problem and dropped that complaint.

In another matter, DEC officials will meet Thursday with people from Hyannis on charges that the village has failed to properly maintain its sewage treatment plant.

Pickets Are Removed At Gentleman Plant Site

Sutherland (AP) — Officials of Local 554 of the General Drivers and Helpers Union said Wednesday afternoon they had removed pickets at the Gerald Gentleman power plant site near Sutherland.

Jerry Younger of Grand Island, business manager of the local, said the picket lines were removed pending the outcome of a National Labor Relations Board hearing in North Platte Monday.

Picket lines were established Monday. Union officials charged Morrison-Knudsen Co. with unfair labor practices in connection with the firing of a union steward last August. Morrison-Knudsen is the contractor for site preparation work on the Nebraska Public Power District project.

The complaint had been filed in August. Earlier this month, the NLRB issues a decision that Morrison-Knudsen should rehire the union steward, with full back pay.

Union officials said the company refused to rehire the worker and the work stoppage followed.

Nebraska 4-H Leader Is Cited At National Meet

Roanoke, Va. — An associate state 4-H leader from Nebraska was one of 59 Extension 4-H agents from Alaska to Arizona to receive awards here Wednesday during the 27th annual conference of the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents (NAEA).

The work of Elaine Skucius was honored with the Distinguished Service Award and she was also cited for 25 years of service. The Distinguished Service Award is presented annually to an outstanding member of NAEA. Miss Skucius earned the award through her "dedicated and effective work with the 4-H Youth Development program."

Market Retreats Again

New York (AP) — Stock market prices retreated over a broad front Wednesday for the third straight session. Brokers said it was a continuation of a technical correction after the market's sharp advance this fall.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 155 points from its yearly low in late August to its intraday high of 997 Monday, closed down 11.96 points at 956.58. The blue chip indicator swung widely during the day, falling 6 points in the morning but erasing the loss by noon. But it started down again.

"The market's going down because it went up too far too fast," said Lucien Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co. "It's a technical correction that has no news association."

Declines held a broad lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange, outnumbering them 1,088 to 410 among the 1,809 issues traded. Volume was a moderate 17.69 million shares. The broad-based NYSE composite index of some 1,500 common stocks lost .57 to finish at 58.28.

Volume leader on the Big Board was British Petroleum, which continued to benefit from the negative impact the Midwest war has had on international oil. It rose 1/2 to 58 1/2, after a 1/2 decline the day before.

Hardee's, which indicated that earnings for the fiscal year just ended probably would not be as high as originally estimated, fell 1/2 to 9 1/2. Deere & Co. lost 3/4 to 55 1/2 after a Midwest brokerage house put out a warning on the stock.

Volatile Fairchild Aircraft dropped 3/4 to 75 1/2, and Polaroid, which has slumped in the wake of its announcement that 1974 net would not be as high as some analysts had anticipated, fell 2 1/2 to 45 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, losers swamped gainers 5 to 3 and the market-value index lost 1.46 to 110.7. The over-the-counter trading, the NASDAQ composite index lost .46 to close at 110.17.

'Northern' Player

Omaha — Remember how "chilly" it was last week in Lincoln?

"When I went home at Christmas time last year it was —55," said Vic Mercredi of the Omaha Knights hockey team. "But, of course, it's like that most of the time, so it really wasn't so bad."

Mercredi hails from Yellowknife, a town of 6,000 in Canada's Northwest Territory, one of the North American continent's most desolate and northern spots. Mercredi, when asked how far north his hometown is replied, "You know where Edmonton Alberta is? It's 1,000 miles north of that."

Despite the distance from metropolitan areas, the Atlanta Flames drafted him second in the first round of last summer's pro draft. When he signed a Flames' contract, he became the first player from the Northwest Territory to sign a National Hockey League pact.

"I was pretty happy to go in the first round, but I try not to let the pressure bother me," the 20-year-old said. "I just try to do the best job I can."

The weather does have one side benefit in the Northwest Territory. You can skate outside from September to July.

"Up there, it's primarily a one-sport climate," he said. "They used to bring the hockey games (NHL) on a week later on television. It was kind of funny watching a game on TV when you already knew the score. Now they televise the games live."

A 15-Year Veteran

A hockey player since he was five years old, Mercredi enjoyed tremendous success in the minors. He spent three years at Penticton, B.C., where he rifled in 55 goals and obtained 56 assists for 111 points in his final year.

He spent the next two years at New Westminster, B.C., and eclipsed his Penticton totals with 52 goals and 62 assists for 114 points. Those figures undoubtedly were key items in the Flames' decision to sign him to a pro contract.

"I hope I can score like that for Omaha this year," the 5-11, 185-pound forward said. "I like to use the slap shot, but I'll use whatever comes in best."

Mercredi, considered one of the Knights' sharpest skaters and almost a "can't miss" NHL prospect, recalls his first game against NHL competition — a 4-4 exhibition tie with the New York Islanders.

"It was so much different than minor hockey," he said. "The pace was so much faster and the players shot so much harder. They were all good all-around hockey players."

Although he failed to score in that contest, he was at least cognizant of the gap between minor league hockey and the NHL.

If Mercredi progresses as Omaha general manager-coach Fred Creighton and the Atlanta organization hope, Mercredi could be playing in Georgia city before this season ends.

"I really can't say when I could go to the Flames," said the first-year professional. "I'd like to go up this year if possible, but it's up to them. I want to do a good job here in Omaha."

Unbeaten CU Frosh Face Nebraskans

Boulder, Colo. — Coach Irv Brown's Colorado freshmen put a 20-game unbeaten string on the line Friday afternoon in the season finale against the Nebraska frosh at 1:30 in Memorial Stadium in Lincoln.

The Baby Buffs (4-0) have been idle for two weeks since posting Wyoming 55-0 in Boulder to run the streak to 20 games without a loss. The last time the Baby Buffs lost was in the final game of the 1968 season to the Wyoming frosh.

Nebraska's frosh beat Oklahoma, 13-3, a week ago Monday night at Norman to run their record to 2-1. The Husker yearlings also beat Kansas State, 10-7, but Missouri's frosh snapped the 15-game winning string by taking a 24-22 win at Columbia on Oct. 12 from the baby Big Red.

With half a dozen of his top lads seeing varsity duty, such as tailbacks Billy Waddy and Melvin Johnson, tight end Don Hasselbeck, offensive guard Leon White, and linebacker Mike Spivey, Brown will put together a patched lineup for the Husker game Friday.

The Baby Buffs feature a strong running attack that is averaging 340.1 yards per game in the four outings. It's headed by quarterback Tom Tesone of Cherry Creek (6-2, 183), the former Prep All-American, and his two fine backs in fullback Ray Barrs of Albuquerque, N.M., and tailback Terry Dahlberg of Southern Colorado's Douglas County High.

Barrs (6-2, 200) has run for 309 yards on 56 carries, Dahlberg (the state prep hurdles champ last year) for 367 yards on 45 carries, and Tesone has run for 205 yards on 26 carries despite missing two games with a banged-up shoulder. His backup will be 6-2, 178-pound Ted Cox of Gretna, Neb., who showed to advantage against Wyoming.

CU's leading receiver is hometown product Buck Arnold, the 6-4 191-pound all-state from Boulder Fairview, who has caught six passes for 157 yards and three TDs.

On defense, the Baby Buffs are led by 5-11, 218-pound middle guard Tilo Lolotai of Honolulu, who has blocked two punts for touchdowns this season and has spent most of his time in enemy backfields.

Osborne Not Expecting Pass Attack

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Only three Big Eight teams have thrown fewer passes this season than has Colorado and Nebraska coach Tom Osborne isn't expecting the Buffs to try to improve their position in that department this week.

With his defensive secondary leading the nation in pass defense, the Husker coach figures most teams would think it a waste of time trying to throw against Randy Berg, Bob Thornton, Mark Heydorff and Zaven Yarialian.

"I would expect Colorado to try to run against us," he said Wednesday in discussing the Saturday opponent at Memorial Stadium, "and use the pass only as a surprise weapon."

"I think most teams are finding it a waste of time trying to throw against us. Take Kansas, for example. They threw 30 passes and gained only 90 yards."

"That seems like a waste of time. They could have taken those 30 plays back and run the ball with them and probably gained just as much yardage."

Colorado's No. 1 running threat for three years has been tailback Charlie Davis, who set a school career rushing record in last week's win over Missouri. However, the Husker Black Shirts have held him below par the past two seasons.

Osborne, however, points out that the Huskers haven't concentrated on stopping Davis in the past and won't this time, either.

"We haven't done anything special for Davis," he explained. "They could bring in Waddy (freshman tailback Billy Waddy) and he's as apt to break a long run as is Davis."

"Colorado has been impressive offensively. Even though they were beaten badly by Oklahoma, they should have had 21 points. They moved the ball well and once fumbled it away at the Oklahoma one and another time they were stopped at the Oklahoma two."

One of the things that makes Colorado a good offensive team is the players they have at the skilled positions, tight end J. V. Cain, wingback David Logan and Davis or Waddy at tailback, Osborne notes.

"They're like Kansas in having good people at the skilled positions," he points out. "And while their quarterback Clyde Crutcher, has trouble passing from the dropback position, he is a good runner and a good thrower."

"He just has trouble seeing his receivers when he drops back because of his lack of height. But he can hurt you with his scrambling and on the option plays."

2 Pick NU, 1 Picks CU

Charlie Smith of United Press International and Will Grimley of The Associated Press are forecasting a Nebraska victory

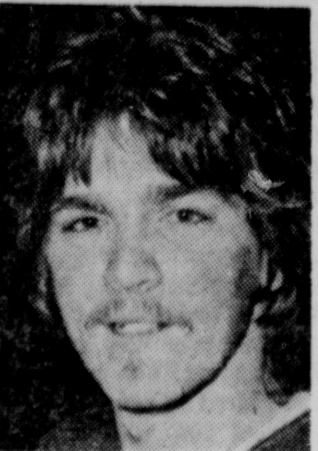

Saturday, but Herschell Nissen-son of The Associated Press sees a Colorado win.

Smith, picking the Huskers by 21-17, says, "Give Cornhuskers the home field edge." And Grimley in forecasting a 17-14 Nebraska victory adds, "The disappointing Cornhuskers should hulk a few buffalo before a rabid home crowd in Lincoln."

Nissen-son says Colorado will win by 21-17, commenting, "Buffs knocked off Missouri last week. When you're hot, you're hot. Upset Special of the Week."

Odds makers Say 10

The national point spread on the Nebraska-Colorado game shows the Huskers as a 10-point favorite.

FINLEY IN TROUBLE

Owner Placed On Probation

... ACTION BY KUHN

New York (UPI) — Charles O. Finley, the Oakland A's controversial owner, has been placed on indefinite probation by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn and warned of possible more drastic action next time, the UPI learned Wednesday.

Finley, at his office in Chicago, acknowledged the action by Kuhn but declined to comment upon it.

He did reveal, however, he has paid a total of $7,000 in fines slapped on him by Kuhn for three separate infractions.

The A's owner commented plenty on that.

He also made known that fact the A's have asked unconditional release waivers on second baseman Mike Andrews, who became something of a storm center during the world series after Oakland tried placing him on the disabled list.

If Andrews is not claimed by any other club which can have him for $1, he automatically becomes a free agent by noon Thursday.

Kuhn's decision to place Finley on probation was made known in a letter to the Oakland owner sent him by the Baseball Commissioner. Kuhn sent a copy of the letter to the two league presidents, Joe Cronin of the American League and Charles (Chub) Feeney of the National; all the owners in both leagues and all the general managers.

In his letter to Finley, Kuhn spelled out the infractions for which he was being fined.

—Finley was being fined $1,000 for "embarrassing" the New York Mets during the World Series by making a public announcement concerning the fact the A's had been rejected permission to use reserve infielder Manny Trillo.

—Kuhn also was fining Finley another $1,000 for taking it upon himself to have the lights turned on at Oakland Coliseum before the bottom of the ninth inning in the second series game.

—And the major $5,000 fine against Finley was being levied for his actions in trying to place Andrews on the disabled list after the second baseman committed a pair of costly errors in the second game, which the A's lost.

Getting to the heart of the letter, Kuhn said: "Accordingly, the Oakland club is hereby to remit the sum of $7,000, its check to be received here no later than Nov. 1, 1973.

"I also determine that you personally shall be placed on probation until further notice and warn you that further conduct not in the best interest of baseball may lead to disciplinary action against you as provided in Article 1 of the Major League Agreement."

Article 1 of the Major League agreement gives the commissioner the power to remove any officer from a major league club if he feels it is in baseball's best interest.

Finley says he wrote "a letter of protest" in paying the $7,000 in fines.

"We got the okay to use Trillo in the playoffs from Baltimore," said Finley. "Then I went to New York a day before the World Series and asked permission to use him also.

"I asked Bob Scheffing (the Mets' general manager) if I could use him. We were in a meeting with Yogi Berra, Dick Williams and Johnny Johnson, the commissioner's representative. Scheffing said it was okay with the Mets for us to use Trillo, but he said I have to tell you—no—on orders from Feeney and the National League." In other words, Scheffing was saying the Mets had no objection, but Feeney and the National League had.

Scheffing denies ever saying it was "okay" with the Mets for the A's to place Trillo on their roster.

But Finley goes on with his version. He says:

"The next day I made an announcement that the Mets are playing with 25 players. I said we were being denied the use of Trillo, so we're going with only 24 players. For that I was fined $1,000 for making the announcement."

Finley said he wasn't trying to "embarrass" the Mets with his announcement.

"We just were telling the fans what we thought they should know," he said. "So this costs me $1,000."

Insofar as the second $1,000 fine is concerned, Finley said he ordered the lights at Oakland Coliseum turned on for only one reason.

"It was getting very dark at home plate. It was for the safety of my players that I called upstairs and told the electricians to turn on the lights and not to gain any hitting advantage."

As for his actions with Andrews, Finley said Dr. Harry R. Walker examined Andrews after the second series game and found him to have a history of a chronic shoulder disability.

Finley said that in the opinion of Dr. Walker, Andrews was "disabled."

"I asked Mike Andrews if he'd be willing to sign such a statement," said the Oakland owner. "He said, 'yes, Mr. Finley, I will sign it if you will guarantee me a major league contract for 1974.'"

"I said, 'Mike, there is no way I could do such a thing. There's no way I could place such an imposition on my manager or on my team. You'll have to make the ball club."

Finley said at first Andrews wouldn't sign a statement to the effect he was disabled, then he changed his mind and did.

"I did not fire Mike Andrews," says Finley. "All I did was ask for a substitute. Yet, I'm fined $5,000."

With his letter of protest to the commissioner, Finley said he also requested a hearing before baseball's executive council as soon as possible.

Breakthrough Made In Steroid Detection

LONDON (UPI) — A major breakthrough in the detection of anabolic steroids, the body-building drugs used by many of the world's leading sportsmen to improve their performances, has been made by a British research team.

Dr. Roger Bannister, chairman of the Sports Council which sponsored the project, announced today that a research group at London's St. Thomas's Medical School, led by Professor Raymond Brooks, has

Bluebonnet Bowl Officials List 15 Possibles

HOUSTON (AP) — Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl officials listed 15 teams Wednesday as possibilities for the Dec. 29 post season football game which will be played in Astrodome.

The list included three Southwest Conference teams and SWC member-elect Houston. The conference schools are Texas, Texas Tech and Southern Methodist.

Other teams on the list include Alabama, Auburn, Colorado, Louisiana State, Miami of Florida, Missouri, Nebraska, Notre Dame, Penn State, Tulane and Tennessee.

The Southwest Conference champion is tied to the Cotton Bowl and Texas is the current favorite for that spot.

Onofrio Says Bybee Ready

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Coach Al Onofrio had good news for Tiger fans Wednesday: "It looks like Bybee will be able to play."

Ray Bybee, senior fullback, was injured in Missouri's one-point victory over Nebraska and missed the games against Oklahoma State and Colorado.

Onofrio said middle guard Hennis Butler remains doubtful for Saturday's game against Kansas State. He's been hobbled by a badly bruised leg.

developed tests for detecting the use of the steroids.

The group's success, after three years of research, could have a considerable effect on the Olympic games and in many sports in which there has been widespread use of anabolic steroids to boost physical size and strength in order to improve performance.

The sports council is informing the International Olympic Committee (IOC) international federations and national governing bodies of sport of the findings so that they can devise appropriate measures to combat the use of the drug.

Dr. Bannister, a track immortal himself for being the first man to break the four-minute mile barrier, said: "Although drug-taking is forbidden by the IOC and all sports governing bodies throughout the world, there has been no method of detecting anabolic steroids until now. Sports governing bodies themselves pressed for a method of testing to eliminate this abuse."

Dr. Bannister said the Council felt the principle of spot checks on athletes will have to be accepted by the international sports bodies. "If athletes refuse then they should not be eligible to compete. The chance of steroid takers not being detected are now nil," he added.

He felt it would be "impracticable" for the checks to be introduced other than in a preliminary way for the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch next year, but he hoped that the situation would be "under control" before the Montreal Olympics in 1976.

Lead Kept By McCune

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Don McCune of Munster, Ind., maintained his grip on first place in the money standings of the Professional Bowlers Association this week with his 21st-place finish in the Painesville Open.

McCune stands at $66,100 with a comfortable lead over second place Barry Asher of Costa Mesa, Calif., who has earned $55,886 so far this season.

Dick Ritger of Hartford, Wis., stayed in third place with $43,343.

Others in the top 10 include Jim Godman of Lorain, Ohio, $40,408; Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., $40,288; Don Johnson of Akron, $38,515; Carmen Salvino of Chicago, $34,363; Jay Robinson of Los Angeles, $31,115; Gary Dickinson, Fort Worth, Tex., $30,173, and Mike McGrath of St. Louis, Mo., $27,863.

Dr. Bannister continued: "I hope the IOC and other sports authorities will accept the new technique and go on to introduce whatever further checks will effectively rid sport worldwide of the evils of drug abuse."

"Sports competitors who take steroids are not only cheating, they may be risking serious damage to their health. There is evidence that steroids taken in large doses can cause liver damage and a reduction in fertility."

Dr. Bannister said the use of anabolic steroids—known to athletes as the "bulk bomb"—is believed to have been a factor in raising performances in many Olympic and world championship sports to the point that in some events competitors not using these drugs stood little chance of winning.

Dr. Bannister said the Council felt the principle of spot checks on athletes will have to be accepted by the international sports bodies. "If athletes refuse then they should not be eligible to compete. The chance of steroid takers not being detected are now nil," he added.

He felt it would be "impracticable" for the checks to be introduced other than in a preliminary way for the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch next year, but he hoped that the situation would be "under control" before the Montreal Olympics in 1976.

Two Sooners Still Injured

Norman, Okla. (AP) — University of Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer said Wednesday that halfback Gary Young, who could not make the trip to Manhattan, Kan., last week because of a knee injury, will remain out of the lineup for the Iowa State game.

Freshman halfback David James, who made the Manhattan trip in Young's place, was injured last week and will be unable to play this week.

Four Tracks Indicted

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—A federal grand jury Wednesday indicted four racetracks on charges of illegally writing off thousands of dollars in contributions to the 1969 campaign of Republican Gov. William T. Cahill and the party's finance committee in 1970.

The tracks indicted were Hialeah Race Course in Florida and the Atlantic City Racing Association, McKee City, N.J., the Garden State Racing Association, Cherry Hill, N.J., and the Monmouth Park Jockey Club, Inc., of Oceanport, N.J.

Former state Treasurer Joseph M. McCrane, Jr., was indicted on charges of helping mastermind a scheme in which businesses were encouraged to make illegal tax writeoffs on contributions to the 1969 campaign. His father-in-law is Eugene Mori, owner of Garden State. Mori was once associated with the Florida track.

In announcing the indictments, U.S. Attorney Herbert J. Stern said they were part of a "continuing grand jury investigation" into the alleged writeoff scheme. If indicted, the tracks face fines ranging from $5,000 to $15,000.

According to the indictments: —Atlantic City Racing Association was charged with illegally writing off a $9,500 political contribution.

—Hialeah Race Course, Inc. was charged with illegally writing off a $1,000 contribution to the campaign.

—Garden State Racing Association was charged with filing false income tax returns for 1969, 1970 and 1971, and with making $35,000 in political contributions to Cahill's successful 1969 campaign.

—Garden State was charged with failing to report on its 1970 income tax return $14,215.25 which it allegedly received from the Hialeah Race Course and disbursed to the 1969 campaign, and also unlawfully deducted a $5,000 contribution to the 1970 campaign.

—Monmouth Park Jockey Club was charged with illegally deducting a $5,025 political contribution to the Republican Campaign Finance Committee on its 1970 income tax return.

McCrane and Nelson S. Gross, former state chairman of the GOP party, face trial on charges of devising the alleged scheme through which firms were able to hide their contributions by being billed for nonexistent services. In this way, the government charged, contributors were able to illegally deduct the expenses on their tax returns.

Six firms have already been indicted. Three of them have pleaded guilty to a charge of filing false tax returns.

Records Fall In Girl's City

Six new girls swimming records were established during preliminary trials Wednesday of the High School Girls All-City Swim Meet.

Lincoln Southeast's Sue Maude established two marks, the first in the 200 freestyle in 2:17.1 and the second in the 100 freestyle in :59.1.

Sally Wilson of East also established two records, covering the 50 freestyle in :26.5 and the 50 butterfly in :29.6.

The other two marks were set by Susan Hart of East in the 400 freestyle (5:09.1) and Pam Powers, Northeast, in the 50 breaststroke (:36.3).

200 freestyle — 1. Sue Maude, LSE, 2:17.1 (new record, old record by Annette Wayne, LHS, 2:18.4 in 1972); 2. Sue Huan, Hart, 2:20.3; 3. Brenda K. Sharkey, LHS, 2:29.0; 4. Laurie Anderson, East, 2:29.5; 5. Chris Carmichael, East, 2:30.0; 6. Kathy McCulloch, LSE, 2:34.9.

Ord Looking For Upset

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Ord has been winding up at least six months for a shot at Lexington's football team. Friday that chance finally arrives.

And Lexington coach Noel Martin is understandably wary of what his No. 1-rated Class B club is up against at Ord.

"At this point, a team can base a whole season by beating us," points out Martin. "I'm sure Ord will be primed. I understand they started preparing for us last summer. I've also been told they've scouted almost every game we've played."

Martin calls Ord coach Chuck Squier "a very good coach and a sound fundamentalist. His teams are always very physical and they're also very quick this year."

Ord, rated 10th in Class B, has lost only to Central City (25-22) in eight games. Lexington, the defending state champion, has lost only two of 35 games under Martin, in his fourth year as head coach.

"We'll have to control the football and can't make any mistakes," Martin says of the Ord conflict. "The Ord's have the calibre of ours. When I make that type of comparison, it's a compliment."

Martin vividly recalls the "exceptional" job that Ord junior quarterback Bill Gogan did last year when Lex escaped from the Central 10 Conference foe, 32-28.

"Ord runs the Wishbone as well as any high school team I've seen," praises Martin.

"We like the challenge of finishing the season against Ord this week and Cozad next week," adds Martin. "They're the type of tests good teams should welcome if they want to be state champions."

In games involving Lincoln teams, it's:

Lincoln Southeast v. Lincoln Plus X, Friday night, Seacrest Field — Can the Knights bump unbeaten teams back-to-back? Plus X has more riding on the outcome — a possible state Class B championship. Southeast seeks to rejoin the Class A top 10. Defense will dominate. A break might decide it.

Lincoln High at Ralston, Friday night — The Links learned a painful lesson against North Platte: quickness usually overcomes strength. Fortunately for the Links, Ralston probably isn't as quick as North Platte.

Papillion v. Lincoln Northeast, Saturday night, Seacrest Field — Many find Papillion's season-long troubles mysterious. Northeast intends to keep the situation clouded without revealing the weapons it might have for North Platte next week.

In other key games, North Platte is favored to end Scottsbluff's 6-game winning streak to qualify for the Big 10 Conference playoff as the West division representative.

And Grand Island is favored to edge Hastings out of the East Big 10 picture to qualify for next week's playoff at either Scottsbluff or North Platte.

While Class B leader Lexington is expected to survive 10-rated Ord, No. 1 Class C Plainview is favored over fourth-ranked Neligh. And Class D pacesetter Nebraska City Lourdes has too much backfield speed for sixth-rated Falls City Sacred Heart.

In other quality matchups, it's Bassett over Ansley, Arapahoe over Bertrand, Aurora over Seward, Central City over Minden, Shickley over Clay Center, Norfolk over Columbus, Norris over Crete, Sandy Creek over Geneva, Plattsmouth over Nebraska City and Schuyler over York.

Last week's mark was a season best of .797 on 129 right, 33 wrong and 5 ties, bringing the season's total to 932-338-31 for .734.

Lyle Wins Decision

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Ron Lyle, the Denver ex-convict, slugged out a unanimous 10-round decision over Baltimore's Larry Middleton Wednesday night in a battle of two of the world's top 10 heavyweights.

Lyle, 31, now 26-1, and fifth-ranked by the World Boxing Association, stalked Middleton through the brawl, landing heavy blows to the head and body.

Middleton, 31, now 20-4-1, was able to outlast Lyle but clearly could not outlast him.

Lyle cut Middleton's nose in the early rounds and blood splattered from the wound throughout the fight.

The two judges and one referee all gave the match to Lyle with scores of 50-42, 47-43, and 47-43 respectively.

The fight was a rematch of a bout in Denver last December in which Lyle knocked out Middleton in the third round.

There were no knockdowns in the fight, although Middleton stumbled to the canvas in the third round.

Lyle, known as a puncher who already has scored 19 knockouts, said afterward he was not disappointed that he could not floor Middleton.

Seated in his locker room, with an ice pack pressed to his forehead, Lyle told a battery of reporters, "Listen, you can't knock out everybody."

He said he couldn't get Middleton this time, "because he ran too much and he didn't seem like he wanted to fight."

Middleton, attending his wounds in his locker room down the hall, did not deny that he ran.

"I stood there and battled it out with him...but he just couldn't do it," he said.

Middleton said before the fight that if he lost this bout he may retire from boxing. But he said after the loss, that he will stay in the fight game and that he wants another fight with Lyle.

Ali's Jaw Said OK After Examination

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali exhibited his jaw Wednesday to combat rumors that it had been broken again. But he did it reluctantly and with a touch of sarcasm.

"How's he gonna know if anything is wrong with my jaw," snapped Ali when told at a news conference that his jaw was

Rooney Contacted

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steelers vice president Dan Rooney said Wednesday the San Diego Chargers contacted him about the purchase of Johnny Unitas, but Rooney said he rejected any negotiations out of hand.

He said the club was "very satisfied" with its quarterback situation, despite the fact that a shoulder injury has sidelined starter Terry Bradshaw indefinitely.

Rooney said he had no discussions about obtaining the 41-year-old quarterback who was cut by the Steelers as a rookie in 1955.

"We did not have any discussion with them because there was nothing to discuss," he said.

"At the press luncheon Monday Coach Chuck Noll said he was confident that Terry Hanratty and Joe Gilliam could handle the quarterbacking of our team," Rooney said.

Rooney issued the statement in response to a story in the Pittsburgh Press implying the Steelers were interested in signing Unitas, a native of Pittsburgh.

Bradshaw will be out of action for six to eight weeks with a shoulder separation suffered in the game against Cincinnati last week.

Rooney said that if anything happened to Hanratty or Gilliam "obviously we would try to get another quarterback."

going to be examined by a New York State Athletic Commission physician.

"He can't see my jaw," said Ali has Dr. Harry Kleiman carried out the examination. "You'd have to X-ray my jaw. There's nothing wrong with it. This is just publicity. They're just jivin' the people."

The news conference was called by Madison Square Garden Boxing, Inc., following reports that Ali's jaw, which was broken in fight with Ken Norton last March, was broken again last Friday in an exhibition in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. The Garden will be the scene of Ali's rematch with Joe Frazier Jan. 28.

Ali said what had happened was a permanent bridge on the left side of his mouth had been loosened and needed repair.

"Wink your left eye," Dr. Kleiman told Ali as the examination neared an end.

"What does winking my left eye have to do with my jaw," sneered Ali.

"There's no clinical evidence of a broken jaw but an X ray will have to be taken," Dr. Kleiman concluded.

Then Ali pronounced, "I just chewed a steak. How can I chew a steak with a broken jaw. If my jaw was broken I'd be in the hospital."

The examination completed, and photographed, Ali met the press and said:

"I had to dress up to come here today. I don't like to dress up. I don't even know what kind of questions you would want to ask."

Came the first question: "Are you going to go trick or treat tonight?"

"Trick or treat," bellowed Ali breaking into a grin. "Is today Halloween. I didn't know today was Halloween."

He went on to tell of what he plans to do to Frazier and then to heavyweight champion George Foreman.

NU Pass Defense No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — Top-ranked Ohio State is the toughest team in the nation to score against among major college football teams, according to latest figures released Wednesday by the National Collegiate Sports Services.

The Buckeyes, who boast a perfect 6-0 record, have allowed only 3.3 points per game so far this season while outscoring their opposition by an average of 37 points a game.

Michigan, which is unbeaten in seven games and looms as Ohio State's stiffest competition for the Big Ten Conference title, ranks second in scoring defense with an average of 4.3 points allowed.
